

Thousands Preparing For a Revolt against Laval's Labor Orders

2,000,000 French Ready To Battle Hitler's Leader

Mutinies, Desertions and Suicides Spread among Nazi Troops

Laval Must Back Down or Be Thrown Out, French Spokesman Says

LONDON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A vast underground army numbering upward of 2,000,000 Frenchmen is poised for mass revolt against Pierre Laval's program of forced labor for the Germans, a fighting French spokesman said tonight as reports of mutinies, desertions and suicides among Hitler's own troops in Norway were added to accounts of spreading unrest in conquered Europe.

Laval either must back down on his plan to conscript 150,000 skilled workers for the Nazis or be thrown out of office on a wave of revolt, the French spokesman predicted. If he does back down, this source added, the Germans themselves might oust the Vichy government chief.

With the critical French situation boiling toward a showdown, this was the picture elsewhere in Nazi-conquered lands, as drawn by dispatches from the continent and statements from governments-in-exile here:

Norway: Mounting defections among the 200,000 Nazi occupation troops, resulting from the severe climate, virtually no home leaves, fears of being sent to the Russian front and the hostility of 98 per cent of the Norwegian people.

1,000 Germans Rebel
An authoritative Norwegian informant said that 1,000 Germans stationed north of Kirkenes rebelled at an order transferring them to Russia and that one out of every ten was ordered shot, but that Nazi firing squads refused to shoot their comrades and the garrison was sent to concentration camps instead.

The Norwegian government-in-exile received reports saying that two big concentration camps had been established along the barren Finnish border for mutineers and that at least 1,400 Nazis were in one of them. Another dispatch said German soldiers were committing suicide at "an alarming rate."

Gas Bootleggers To Be Prosecuted

SALISBURY, Wd., Oct. 19 (AP)—Harland W. Huston, Wisconsin county War Price and Rationing Board official, today promised vigorous prosecution for drivers caught using S. or commercial, gasoline ration coupons illegally, adding he would do his best to send such violators to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Without citing specific instances of gasoline bootlegging, Huston declared "bootlegging of gasoline is a disgrace to the county, the Eastern Shore of Maryland and the country. Gasoline bootleggers aren't worthy of being called Americans."

Huston said his promise of prosecution went for gas station operators caught permitting use of ration books for purposes other than for which they were issued.

No More Business With Japan, Grew Says in Speech

Former Ambassador Scores Military Group as Dishonest

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—The United Nations will "never do business with military Japan again," declared former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew tonight in an address before the War Finance Conference at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

"After the years I have spent attempting to safeguard a free American economy against the potential workings of a Japanese military economy, I am relieved to think we shall never try again to preserve the peace and our rights by dealing with a Japan which pursues the course of a robber state," Grew said in a prepared speech.

Grew asserted the financial system which Japan has created is one which violates all concepts of honest dealing — "irrespective of the system."

Mask for Militarists
"It is the mere mask," he emphasized, "for a predatory military oligarchy which neither comprehends nor approves the principles of honest exchange, of stable money, and of international good faith."

Declining to use the word "appeasement," Grew said that his work in Japan as U. S. Ambassador had been one of "constructive conflict," and that he had attempted to lay down a solid foundation for sound U. S. relations, but was constantly thwarted in this (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

McKeldin Found Not Guilty of Speeding Charge

Republican Candidate for Governor Innocent, Board Decides

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Baltimore War Price and Rationing Board decided today that Theodore R. McKeldin, Republican candidate for governor, was not accountable for charges that an automobile in which he was making a campaign tour travelled at a speed of more than thirty-five miles per hour.

The charges were submitted to the board by Leo H. McCormick, state Office of Price Administration director, after an investigation by his department.

McCormick based his complaint on an article in the Baltimore Sunday Sun of Oct. 11 saying that the automobile in which McKeldin rode Oct. 9 in Carroll county had a speed of more than thirty-five miles per hour.

Japs To Punish American Acts Of 'Inhumanity'

Tokyo Sends Out Threats against Aviators Caught in Raids

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—In a threat of reprisal executions of American prisoners of war, Japan declared today that American fliers captured after the April 18 raid on Tokyo would be punished for acts of inhumanity and said fliers seized after any similar raids would be tried for their lives.

Just what prisoners Japan might make the objects of this vengeance was not clear. Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle who led the raiding flight said not a plane was lost in Japan. One United States bomber came down in Soviet Siberia and the crew has been held there.

Tokyo and Berlin radios broadcast and rebroadcast the threat announced first by the press headquarters of the Japanese Imperial command.

Report Americans Captured
The press headquarters was quoted as saying that American airmen—their number not specified—had been captured in the April 18 raid, were found guilty of inhuman conduct, and would "be punished conformably with military law."

Amid the first excited welter of Japanese radio accounts of the American attack on her cities, Tokyo claimed some of the raiders were shot down, and built this up in subsequent broadcasts until it was reported that nine American planes were downed. After that, however, the claim was allowed to die out amid a confusion of conflicting reports.

Prince Broadens Threat
General Prince Naruhiko Higashikuni, Japanese home defense chief, broadened the threat to include the future. The prince is head of a collateral branch of the Imperial family.

Vandenberg Would Lower Voting Age In Nation to 18

Proposes Constitutional Amendment To Conform with Draft Law

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Senate received today a proposed constitutional amendment to lower the voting age from 21 to 18 as it decided to begin debate Thursday on House-approved legislation to subject 18- and 19-year-old men to the military draft.

Introducing the proposed amendment, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) declared that his purpose was to give the privilege of the ballot to men who would be inducted into the fighting forces under the pending bill. The amendment would require ratification by three-fourths of the states, after approval by Congress, before it could become effective.

"If young men of 18 are to be drafted to fight for their country," Vandenberg declared, "they should be able to vote for the kind of government the country is to have."

New Deal Treats War as Glorified WPA Project, Alf M. Landon Asserts

RICH HILL, Mo., Sept. 19 (AP)—Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, declared tonight the New Deal had treated the war "as a glorified WPA project."

Criticizing what he termed the confused policy and contradictory statements on such matters as rubber, farm labor, oil, the draft and food shortages, Landon said in an address for delivery at a Republican rally:

"The peaceful ways of a Republic may result in errors at the beginning of a war. But this is the end of the tenth month."

"Nothing is so destroying to the morale of the country as these conflicting and contradictory statements. When the government doesn't plan, nobody can plan."

Nazi Ferry Hit By Torpedo Off Swedish Coast

Ship Carrying 1,000 Troops Manages To Reach Neutral Port

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 19 (AP)—The German ferry Deutschland carrying 1,000 Nazi troops on furlough was torpedoed late today ten miles off the Swedish coast and an unknown number were drowned.

The vessel, a train ferry, was able to reach Trelleborg tonight by steering with its propellers. The submarine was of "unknown nationality," but Russian craft have been operating under the Baltic Sea for months.

The Germans were returning to Norway from furlough and the Deutschland was enroute from Sassnitz, Prussia, to Trelleborg.

Four soldiers were killed outright by the explosion and twenty-nine others were wounded. A Swedish ferry which was following the Deutschland closely was not attacked.

The American-Swedish news exchange in New York said the Swedish ferry escaped torpedoing by zig-zagging during the attack. The exchange said it had received a cable stating that the unknown number (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

24 Bundsmen Are Found Guilty of Draft Conspiracy

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—A federal court jury of six men and six women tonight convicted twenty-four of twenty-five former leaders of the German-American Bund of conspiracy to counsel evasion of the selective service act.

The verdict was returned five hours and forty minutes after the jury received the case. The former Bundist acquitted was Ferdinand Cullen, one-time leader of the South Bend, Ind., unit.

Conviction carries a maximum sentence of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

War Production Board Orders Tin Collection

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—The War Production Board today ordered mandatory collection of tin cans in more than 400 municipalities.

Nation-wide collection on a mandatory basis will go into effect when additional shredding and detinning facilities become available.

The order requires that all trash collection agencies in municipalities over 25,000 population in fifteen states must collect and keep segregated all "prepared" cans offered in usual trash collections.

Russians Repulse All Attacks on Stalingrad

Red Army Stiffens after Yielding One Block and Holds Furious Germans Inside City

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Oct. 20—The great battle of Stalingrad raged on around a factory stronghold in the northern part of the battered city Monday, but the Russians said today that all German attacks were repelled after the Red army had yielded one block of wrecked buildings during the preceding night.

The Soviet midnight communique said the Germans continued to launch "fierce" tank and infantry attacks in a desperate effort to take the Volga city, and that "fighting was particularly stubborn in the area of one factory," but indicated that there had been no change in the general situation.

Destroy 8 Nazi Tanks
"Our troops in the course of the day," the communique said of the action in the factory area, "beat off all enemy attacks here, and destroyed eight tanks and wiped out about two battalions of enemy infantry."

In one sector eighteen German tanks were destroyed and 400 men were killed.

Northwest of Stalingrad Russian troops consolidated their positions and repelled a number of enemy attacks.

Rumanian troops tried desperately to capture a strategic hill, the communique said, but were thrown back after losing 150 men. On another sector the enemy lost about a company of troops, it added.

Heavy fighting also continued farther south in the Caucasus, both along the Black Sea, southeast of Novorossiisk and in the Mordok area where the Germans were trying to reach the Grozny oil fields.

In the Black Sea area, the communique said, Russian troops evacuated (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Russia Demands Punishment of Hess at Once

Says He Is Being Treated Like an Ambassador by British

MOSCOW, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Soviet Union called today for clarification of the status of Rudolf Hess, British-held former Nazi leader, in a Pravda editorial which declared that he should be tried immediately or be considered an "ambassador of Hitler" in Great Britain.

The editorial in the official communist party newspaper followed up a statement by the government Oct. 15 calling for immediate trial and punishment of any German ringleader "who, in the course of the war, has fallen into the hands of states fighting against Hitlerite Germany."

It declared that President Roosevelt's Columbus Day speech endorsed the idea of such trial and punishment under criminal code.

"To recognize that Hess is not to be tried before the termination of the war means to shut one's eyes to the crimes of one of the most sanguinary Hitlerite villains, and to regard Hess not as a criminal but as a representative of another state (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Farmers Call for Immediate Steps To Insure Adequate Supply of Food

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19 (AP)—Directors of the Interstate Farmers Council asked the Board of Economic Stabilization today to "take immediate steps to insure an adequate food supply by establishing a sound price structure that is adequate to take care of the cost of food production and services."

The council, which represents more than 375,000 farmers in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware and Pennsylvania, also went on record in opposition to any farm price subsidy.

The resolution, adopted unanimously by the directors, objected to the subsidy on the grounds that it "would cost countless dollars in expense of administration, would involve red tape, delay, confusion and, more important, would have a serious demoralizing effect upon the people."

So far as a "sound price structure" was concerned, the resolution commented:

"The government has been directed by Congress to consider the increasing cost of farm labor in arriving at a price structure that will enable the farmer to produce the needed food supply."

"Such consideration is both right and in the interest of national well-being and must be done either in the form of a fair price policy or else in some form of subsidy."

It also asserted that, because of the concentration of war industries in the five state area, the average farmer is called upon to produce the essential protein foods for sixty (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Invaders Held Back by Shells From Big Guns

Ammunition Dumps Blown Up on Eve of All-Out Attack

Furious Assaults from Air Help Put Jap Schedule Awry

By WILLIAM F. FRYE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—United States warships, joining in the battle of the Solomons, have bombarded and blown up ammunition dumps the Japanese had collected for their all-out assault on the marine and army men on Guadalcanal, the navy disclosed late today.

Whether this accurate shooting by the navy, coupled with constant, furious assaults on the enemy from the air, had thrown the Japanese timetable awry was not stated, but the fact remained that at last reports the big enemy land offensive had not yet got under way.

"No recent troop activity or enemy landings on Guadalcanal have been reported," said a navy communique.

Shell Ammunition Dumps
The communique, containing the first report in more than a week of the fleet's activity in waters previously believed dominated by the Japanese, said that American surface vessels shelled the enemy's positions on northwestern Guadalcanal the morning of Oct. 17, with direct hits setting off heavy explosions and fires in ammunition dumps.

The presence of American warships appeared to foreshadow a possible early engagement between the opposing surface vessels which could prove decisive to the outcome of the Solomons campaign.

The navy communique related that during three days beginning Oct. 16, American planes—both long-range army bombers from General Douglas MacArthur's command and navy-marine corps fighters and bombers based on the Solomons—had pounded enemy ships and installations throughout the islands.

Destroy 14 Planes

In a smashing raid Oct. 16 on the Japanese at Rekata Bay, American planes fired fuel storage facilities, bombed anti-aircraft batteries and destroyed fourteen planes, twelve of them on the ground. The same day, four direct bomb hits completed the destruction of two of the three enemy transports previously damaged and beached on the northwest coast of Guadalcanal.

On the morning of Oct. 17 the navy's surface ships staged their bombardment of Japanese positions on Guadalcanal, and American planes from the Guadalcanal air base bombed and strafed the enemy's ground forces on the island throughout the day.

Drive To Wrest Burma from Japs Appears Likely

Intimations of New Allied Move Seen by Kirke L. Simpson

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer
Intimations from India that an Allied attempt to wrest Burma from Japanese control may be in the making tend to recall President Roosevelt's recent flimsy chat assertion that diversion attacks for the relief of both China and Russia are on the United Nations war agenda. That, however, like second-front preparations in Europe, hardly can be an immediate matter. It could not develop in time, for example, to affect the situation of American forces in the Solomons awaiting a formidable Japanese attempt to retake Guadalcanal island although it might prove an added deterrent to Japanese attack on Russia. By the same token, the chances that an Allied second-front in Europe can be opened in time to aid Stalingrad's defenders do not seem bright.

Nazis Expect Attack

It is only in the third crusade war theater, in Egypt, that there is a clearly discernible possibility of early Allied offensive which could deeply influence developments on other fronts, including Russia. Nor is there much doubt that behind the furious and sustained Axis bombing of Malta lies Nazi expectation of such an attack.

By British accounting, one out of every thirteen Axis planes sent against Malta during the last eight days has been shot down and many were so severely damaged that they never reached home. The minimum known enemy plane loss in that period, leaving damaged craft out of the reckoning, is set at 116 as against twenty-eight British ships downed.

There is no indication whatever that the mass air attack has softened up Malta for ultimate capture or that the Axis expected it would. Its purpose is clearly to neutralize Malta as a threat to Axis convoys to Libya carrying reinforcements and supplies for Rommel's stalled African corps.

Rommel in Danger

Nothing short of growing danger that Rommel might be crushed by an impending allied counter-offensive unless heavily bolstered without delay could seem to warrant such lavish expenditure of air power against Malta.

McKeldin submitted an affidavit to the board that his car was not used on the tour, his gasoline ration book was not used and that he had no control over the operation of the automobile. The candidate, who did not appear at today's hearing, was represented by his attorney.

The board commented that "there is no evidence that Mr. McKeldin directed or encouraged the violation of the thirty-five per hour speed limit. He states that he does not know the speed of the cars, but this board believes it would have been desirable if he had observed it, and that a protest from him would have prevented any violation."

All housewives were urged to "prepare" the tin cans and keep them separated from other trash, since municipalities are required to collect only cans which have been prepared and kept segregated. The municipalities must dispose of the cans only by shredding or detinning plants, or to plants engaged in the precipitation of copper.

In preparing the cans, the following steps are recommended:
Remove the label, wash out all food particles out of the top and bottom, and flatten the can. Tops and bottoms will be collected with the cans.

While mandatory collection will be made only in cities of 25,000 or more, WPB suggested that smaller communities in the states covered by the order set up collection systems to feed prepared cans into the nearest cities.

WPB said it had set a goal of 1,000,000 tons of steel scrap and 10,000 tons of pure tin from old cans.

amendment would make it apply to "citizens" of the lower age group, thereby making it applicable to girls as well as youths.

Agree on Delay

Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he had agreed with Republican Leader McNary of Oregon that debate on the draft bill would not start until Thursday. McNary said a number of senators had been out of town on the understanding that no legislation of importance would be taken up immediately.

Barkley told reporters he expected little opposition to the bill, adding that the administration's attitude toward some proposed amendments had not yet been determined. These included a proposal by Senator Lee (D-Okla.) to ban the sale of liquor in military camp areas and authorize the secretary of war to act to combat vice conditions in the vicinity of army and navy posts.

Committee Impressed

In formally reporting the draft measure to the Senate, the military committee said it was profoundly impressed by the testimony of military leaders that "not only the success of our armed forces depends upon the employment of our 18- and 19-year old men as soldiers, but that our very national existence is dependent upon their use."

"Members of these groups are particularly fitted for military training and combat," the report continued. "Their response to leadership, their quick recovery from fatigue, their aggressiveness, their enthusiasm, and their 'fair for soldiering' far exceed such qualities in other age groups."

"The simple fact is that they make better soldiers than persons of other age groups and that America can not win unless full use is made of their military capabilities. Our armed forces must have the qualities that belong to youth."

In Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany, the committee said, "the young soldier provides the principal element of elite forces, which are chosen troops employed when a key position must be captured."

The report estimated that German ground units include 8,000,000 men, that Japan had between 70 and 90 divisions of about 16,000 men each, and that Italy, Rumania, Hungary and other Axis countries must have 160 divisions. The 7,500,000 goal fixed for the American army include 2,200,000 in the air forces.

effort by Japan's military extremists.

"It was found utterly impossible to lay any solid foundation," he said, "and those who wanted and worked to do that were rapidly overwhelmed by the military extremists and pro-Axis elements in the country. Thus the effort to reach an agreement and to preserve peace failed and war ensued."

Domestic Production Cut
As Japan's military clique gained strength, he pointed out, Japan's domestic civilian production was cut to the bone, and the materials for a fair and beneficial exchange of goods by export were eliminated, creating the necessity for a totalitarian form of economics whereby Japan robbed from China without giving anything of value in return.

"Japan is finished and ruined," he said, "in terms of honest finance. Her trade is discredited. Her foreign investments are held only at the point of bayonets. Her customers are completely alienated."

"Nevertheless, in terms of dishonest finance, Japan flourishes. They concentrate everything on winning the war."

3-State Crime Wave Is Blamed To Irwin Kadens

Former Law-Abiding Citizen Admits He's Guilty of Many Offenses

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 (AP) — Irwin Kadens, a law-abiding family man who suddenly became one of the nation's most dangerous desperadoes, held a bloody head in shaking hands today and guessed that he had committed "about seventy-five" crimes in eight weeks.

He reached the end of a spectacular outlaw trail in a west side currency exchange. He was engaged in robbing the place when the manager, an employee and a customer wrestled him to the floor. Three policemen rushed to the rescue. One of them knocked him out with pistol butt blows on the head.

The slender, hawk-nosed Kadens was brought to the Pillmore station to be questioned about a kidnapping and a series of robberies, rapes and shootings that prompted J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the FBI, to list him as "three-state crime wave."

"He admits about fifty robberies and other crimes," stated Captain Louis Klatsko.

The prisoner, rubbing his scalp wounds tenderly, interjected: "About seventy-five would be closer."

Hoover Lists Crimes

Hoover, in terming Kadens "one of the most dangerous criminals at large," had placed the abduction, five rapes, seventeen robberies and sixteen auto thefts to his account, but the precise number of offenses went unreckoned while investigators sought to determine what caused him to abandon a life of respectability.

As police pieced together the strange story, they learned Kadens was a Chicago post office clerk with no previous criminal record. He gambled, plunged deeply into debt. Last June, at the age of 32, he left his wife and two children and entered the army, but deserted from Camp Grant on July 14.

Asked the reason for his transformation, Kadens said:

Hit by Officer

"I was hit by a major at Camp Grant. He struck me with his fist and I fell and my head hit a chair. From then on I had no respect for the army."

Kadens averred he had intended to commit suicide on Oct. 22, his thirty-third birthday anniversary, by leaping from the highest building in Chicago.

"I was going to celebrate before I died," he added. "Now I guess I'll have to live a few more days. I took between five and ten thousand dollars. I had a good time. I had lady friends."

Investigators said Kadens's revolver was taken when he looted the apartment of Policeman Howard Wickstrom in Detroit on Aug. 16, and that he wore the officer's uniform when he robbed a United States mail truck Aug. 27 in Chicago.

Kidnaped Couple

The second entry on Kadens's crime log was Aug. 21 when he kidnaped a couple in Detroit and forced them to accompany him to Chicago. The prisoner "guessed" he had roped the woman twice.

On the list, too, was a charge that he shot and wounded Policeman Joseph Krynski in Chicago on Sept. 28.

"I shot that policeman," Kadens admitted readily in recalling his deeds. "I committed about five other attacks on women. I was all over the state of Ohio."

He did not elaborate on his own activities, but the FBI resume noted that he participated in a gun battle with a deputy sheriff at Bucyrus on Sept. 15.

He was charged, in addition, with seven robberies in Chicago and with raping two girls in Chicago and one in Detroit. The detectives stated he preyed especially on men and couples in automobiles, forcing them to drive to isolated areas at night.

Restoration Difficult
Experts familiar with the plans for destruction of the N.E.I. oil fields in event of Japanese conquest figured that it would take from six to eighteen months to restore the fields to production. It is known that Japan was prepared with tools and machinery to repair the destruction of refineries and redrill dynamited wells.

The problem of oil shipment is the key to its use. Japan had an oiler fleet comparable to if not greater than that of the United States at the outbreak of the war. Official announcements to date indicate that three American oilers of the navy and four Japanese naval oilers have been sunk.

Using American Gas
Japanese planes are still using American-made high-octane gas. Shipments in their original containers were sent out from truck to eastern Japanese outposts.

This is the eighth month of Japanese control of the oil area, two months over the minimum estimate of time they would require to restore production.

Gas and oil for American fighting forces must move 6,000 miles from the Persian gulf fields to Australia or 6,500 miles from the Pacific coast.

Russians Repulse

ated two villages after a fierce battle, but in another sector of this region the Red army repelled several attacks, killing 1,200 men.

Situation in Moxdok Area

In the Moxdok area German tanks and infantry succeeded in wedging into Soviet positions, the communique said, but by the end of the day the enemy had been repelled and the Russians had regained their former lines.

There were some indications that heavy losses among the 75,000 Germans in Stalingrad had weakened their all-out drive to smash Soviet resistance.

The resolute Russians declared they had converted the latest German offensive, now five days old, into a long grinding battle like its forerunners by wholesale killing of the attackers, and wearing down the survivors to exhaustion by day and night counter-attacks.

Stalingrad remained in grave peril, however, since the Germans appeared intent on occupying the Volga city and thereby provide a victory needed for not only for military reasons but for home front morale as well.

Latest German Claim

The German communique unusually brief, said that a conquered industrial area had been mopped up, and that planes attacking east of the Volga destroyed 11 oil trains. Further progress was claimed in Western Caucasus where a fortified mountain was claimed. Bombing attacks were reported on the central front where the Germans have said there are vast Russian troops movements, hinting at a new Russian offensive.

The Moscow midday communique said the Germans paid hundreds of lives, eighteen tanks and fourteen planes for their latest gain.

Indicative of the terrible attrition levied by the grim defenders of Stalingrad was a Pravda dispatch saying that of more than 4,000 Soviet troops used in the siege, only 200 survived. Prisoners and captured documents were said to have substantiated the story.

The main German effort was to exploit and widen the wedge driven near the Volga through the capture last week of a factory settlement. The Russian lines, thrown up after that reverse, were reported holding firm.

The Russian offensive northwest of the city which was aimed at the German left flank simmered down to "fighting of local importance." The Russians said they demolished five pillboxes and dugouts, three batteries and dispersed a Nazi infantry concentration preparing to attack.

Defense lines around Moxdok near the Grozny oil fields of the Caucasus were reported to have turned back enemy assaults, destroying eleven tanks and three infantry companies. On the Black Sea, marines landed behind the enemy lines killed forty-five Rumanians and destroyed a radio station without loss.

A submarine in the Baltic was credited with sinking five transports of 36,000 tons, complicating the supply problem for the Germans besieging Leningrad.

Russia Demands

—as Hitler's messenger," the Pravda editorial declared. It added:

Frau Hess Enters Case
"Certainly it is not accidental that the wife of Hess has published a message to some English representatives requesting them to bring her to her husband. Evidently Frau Hess by no means regards her husband as a 'war prisoner.'"

"It should be established who Hess is at present . . . a criminal who is to be tried and punished or the plenipotentiary representative of the Hitler government in England, enjoying immunity."

Pravda took issue with what it described as an attitude expressed by "some important Englishmen" that there is something to be said on both sides of the immediate trial issue.

"The idea of an immediate trial is clear," Pravda asserted, "and against it nothing can be said which is not apart from living reality, from the demands of the people victimized by the Hitlerites, the masses of people in countries occupied by German troops, and from the demands of our duty to the victims of the Hitlerite hangmen, and to ourselves."

Hess's Status Vague
"It seems that because Rudolf Hess came to England in the uniform of a German flier that he already is not one of the most internationally notorious leaders of the criminal Hitlerite gang, but just a plain prisoner of war."

"The well-known criminal Hess had only to put on the uniform of a Hitlerite flier and to fly to England and it seems he can count on the possibility of hiding from an international court."

Certificates Necessary After November 15 For Truck Operation

Operation of trucks will not be permitted after November 15, 1942, unless the owner or operator has in his possession a certificate of competency, signed by a county agent, said last night. This ruling applies to farmers as well as all other truck owners. It was previously announced that the final date of operation without the certificate would be December 15. Mr. Henry says the final date is November 15.

All farmers who receive their forms from the Office of Defense Transportation, which must be filled out when applying for the certificates, may get assistance in completing them at the county agent's office

Hands That Rock the Cradle Now Wield WAF Controls Sticks

By MARGARET KERNODLE
Wide World Features Writer

AN EASTERN ARMY AIR BASE—Now eight Americans boys and girls can brag: "My mama flies army planes too. She's ferrying PT-19-A's and L-4-B's."

I just spent a day at a ferrying division of the Air Transport Command to watch these first feminine flyers flit their civilian flight experience into the precision of the Army air program.

They are inspiring pioneers, including their director, Mrs. Nancy Harkness Love, of Boston, 28-year-old prematurely gray-haired beauty with big blue eyes and 1200 hours flying time. Mothers taking the four-week ferry training (which can end whenever the Army says they're in tune) are: Mrs. Betty Huyler Gillies, of Long Island, president of the "99ers", an organization of women pilots founded by Amelia Earhart in 1929; Mrs. Helen Mary Clark, of Englewood, N. J., each with two children, and Mrs. Catherine Slocum, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who has four.

These are not the first women flyers in civilian war work. Already there are several squadrons of women pilots patrolling the sky now, and women test pilots okay planes at factory fields.

But the sight of a slight five-foot modern matron lugging a parachute toward an Army trainer-plane inspires serious thinking.

Typical applicant for the ferry service is about 30 years old, married, with one child, 13 years of flying with about 1400 hours in various types of planes. So says the office of the director of women pilots, Second Ferrying Group, Ferrying Division Air Transport Command, War Department, Washington, D. C. That's the place to send applications.

Although only experienced pilots, with at least 50 hours in the air in the past year and at least 500 altogether can be considered for ferrying, about 40 letters come to Washington daily from women who want to learn how to fly.

The schedule at the ferrying school is stiff. The women have their own alert room, where a record is kept of where they are all the time. It's a seven-day-a-week program starting at 6:30 a. m. daily. Roll call comes at 8 a. m. And they have drill, too. During part of their approximately 25 hours of flying here the trainees often have definite directions to follow, including forced landings.

The barracks are bare as only military barracks can be. The girls get no frills for their rooms, but some add curtains and a few conveniences. They pay 75 cents a night for a room. Lunch at the officers' mess is 50 cents, and it's good hearty food. A woman reports here at her own expense after an interview and physical examination by an Army flight surgeon. Here she gets an interview, flight check and a check of credentials, also by the Army.

The girl flying candidate takes exactly the same test a male pilot takes for the ferrying. Finally she appears before a board of three Army officers who review her records and flight check to pronounce her a WAF (member of Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squadron).

After her four-week training period ends she probably will spend only ten percent of her time at this base.

Her pay is $3,000 a year—$250 the month.

She wears a GI flight suit for flying but other times wears a gray-green gabardine jacket with skirt or slacks which is regulation but is not called a uniform. The WAACS are the only women with the Army authorized to wear uniforms. Director Love calls these flight suits "teddy bear suits."

Already the WAF's have impressed the soldiers who've seen them drill or fly. Their regulations are fewer than the WAACS, every sign seems to say "Women Working."

It Must Have Been Two Others Guys

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—Military police arrested a man in soldier's uniform on a charge of drunkenness and placed him in a cell at city police headquarters.

When the officers went to the cell next day there was no soldier—only a man in full civilian dress. There was no uniform, either. Later, one was found in an alley below the cell.

The only explanation officers could offer was that the man had been wearing a uniform over his civilian clothing. In police court the defendant said he knew nothing of wearing any uniform. He was taxed with costs on a charge of public drunkenness.

Guard Against Wartime Constipation!

It's frequently due to lack of "bulk"

Millions of folks these war days feel all dragged out, with no zip or pep. And no wonder! Their working, sleeping, and especially their eating habits are all different. Meals are apt to be hurried, improperly balanced—and they neglect the important matter of "bulk" in the diet.

Yet getting enough "bulk" might make all the difference. For lack of it is one of the common causes of constipation. Medical laxatives give only temporary relief in such cases; they don't get at the cause.

But KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN corrects this constipation by supplying the needed "bulk," often brings lasting freedom from the trouble. Eat this crisp, delicious cereal regularly, drink plenty of water and "Join the Regulars." ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Yes, sir! 800,000 barrels of oil to Eastern States every day! That's 600,000 more barrels daily than the Railroads promised to deliver—and better than 50 times the oil rail shipments of a year ago! And how do you like that, Adolf?

Yes, and Railroads are now shipping coal to New England; Maine potatoes to the South; Pacific Coast lumber Eastward; Florida fruits up North...you name it, the Railroads are moving it!

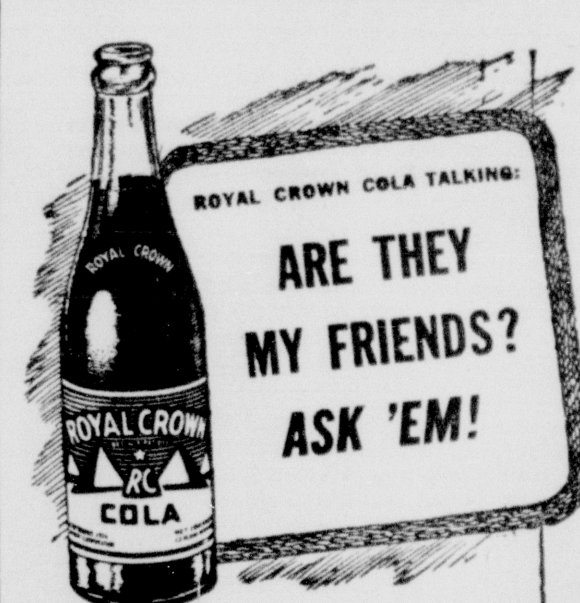

That's not all! Much of the material which formerly moved over highways before the rubber crisis is now transported by rail. That's for your information, Tojo!

Of course, the Railroads' big job—the fast, safe, efficient handling of troop movements, vital war materials and essential civilian travel—still goes on; day in, day out.

The Unnecessary Tax That Is "Necessary"

GOVERNOR O'CONNOR asserts that the state income tax cannot be "eliminated altogether." But therein is to be seen a confession that some part of it ought to be eliminated.

As a matter of fact, the governor has several times admitted the unjustness of this oppressive exaction and has played to the galleries with promises of reductions in it. No reductions have been made, as they should have been made, since the slight shaving brought about two years ago through the pressure of public opinion and the vigorous action of various taxpayer organizations.

In December, 1940, the governor made his first admission that a fraud had been perpetrated upon the citizens of Maryland by an unconscionable income tax. He then stated that he would ask the General Assembly for a cut of "at least" twelve to fifteen per cent. Even then an unprecedented surplus was piling up in the state treasury. A year ago, after widespread dissatisfaction had been unmistakably recorded by the people over the snide reduction given in the huge income rates, the governor again confessed its unjustness, again promised another reduction, this time of fifteen to twenty per cent. Later on he hedged about that, stating that it would be necessary for a special commission of experts to look into the situation and give "prompt and reliable advice" whether the tax could be reduced. Meanwhile the unwarranted surplus kept piling up. Then, last August, the governor was moved to make another promise of a reduction of twenty to twenty-five per cent.

The state income taxes should be all means have long ago been reduced. For one thing, as was pointed out by this newspaper and by the various volunteer taxpayers' organizations that worked so effectively before and during the last sitting of the General Assembly, they were inexcusably high at the outset. For another, which was also pointed out at the time and was stressed by Theodore R. McKeldin in beating the governor to the punch about the necessity for calling a special session, which the governor said he "might" call, "the tremendous increase in taxation by the federal government, with exemptions so low that practically nobody in the state will be relieved of paying direct taxes," made action by the legislature absolutely necessary.

Governor O'Connor, in declaring that the income tax cannot be "eliminated altogether," as demanded by many citizens and organizations on the ground that it is absolutely unnecessary, specified nothing about economy in state government. The need for that has obtained for several years. In the spring of 1941, before the legislature got through with its job, it was specifically pointed out by the Citizens' State Budgetary Committee where some $7,000,000 could be saved without reducing state governmental expenses below the standard established during the preceding biennial suggestions being given as to exactly where such savings could be applied.

But, while the work of that committee had a salutary influence and forced some reluctant reductions, not nearly as much as should have been made was effected. Not only were nonessential functions continued, but many new positions were unnecessarily added to the pay roll, some 530 having been included in the specified parts of the budget, and an undeterminable number being included in the concealed portions beyond the number then employed. These additional salary listings accounted for a boost of more than twenty-two per cent in the budget increase.

Theodore R. McKeldin has been pointing out in recent speeches some of these hidden items, such as the appointment of unnecessary race track inspectors, inexperienced politicians as right-of-way men on the state roads commission, state guards at $5 a day and unnecessary doorkeepers, clerks and stenographers of the legislature along with other like avenues of waste.

Governor O'Connor would gain more respectful attention about the alleged necessity for keeping up an oppressive income tax if he should make some overt move toward effecting long-needed economies in the operation of the state government.

The governor also would gain more respectful attention on the subject if he should admit, along with his various admissions that the state income tax has been entirely too high, that any reduction would not really be a reduction but a restitution. It would be merely returning to the people, though only in part, something wrongfully taken from them.

That much was made plain in a letter written last August to the governor by Harry S. Mitterdorf, of Baltimore, president of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council. Mitterdorf noted that, since the big surplus piled up in the state treasury came from the people, and since they were charged more than was necessary to operate the state government, the overcharge, amounting to as much as the entire estimated income tax receipts, should be returned whence it was taken.

But such restitution is not to be expected. If there is any, it will be slight. And if it is even slight it will probably have to be forced by the activities of volunteer taxpaying groups and an aroused citizenry, who can provide a moving influence at the coming election, as it was forced by them when the legislature last sat.

The income tax has been a colossal blunder on the part of the governor and the state administration, and it is plain why they are now so hard put to it in trying to trump up excuses and alibis. But the people should know by this time that the whole scheme was made necessary, as Mr. McKeldin has charged, "for the purpose of providing funds to promote the political interests of the O'Connor-Curran clique of the Democratic party."

No Pushover At Guadalcanal

RENEWAL of major action on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons is further proof that the Japanese are no pushovers in this war—that on the contrary they are determined and resourceful foes.

American marines caught the Japs by surprise and captured the big airfield on Guadalcanal, but they didn't succeed in clearing the island of Japs. Now the Japs have been strongly reinforced—as have the marines—and the battle for Guadalcanal has blazed up again in full fury, with planes from Gen. MacArthur's command coming to the aid of the American forces. The war in the Solomons is being directed not by Gen. MacArthur but by Admiral Nimitz from Honolulu.

The Japanese suffered heavy losses in repeated efforts to land reinforcements on the island but were not deterred. They seem not to count the cost.

Both Japs and Germans are tough—so tough that it will take a vast improvement in the Allied war effort before the United Nations can have definite assurance of victory.

A Scrap Hunt Suggestion

AS announced in the news columns, there is to be another scrap metal collection here, the date being Sunday, October 25.

Inasmuch as it may be more difficult for some to dig up odds and ends of metal by reason of their previous efforts in kind, a suggestion made in humorous vein by the Christian Science Monitor is perhaps not without merit. A likely place for junk, it says, is back of the cushions in the car.

The Monitor reports the case of one man who explored these depths and recovered seventeen cents, his wife's missing sun glasses, his own misplaced dog license, one and a half pairs of gloves, eight sticks of chewing gum, a brass lipstick holder and 172 hairpins.

If it brings no results here, the notation will doubtless prompt other suggestions as to where in and around the house some scrap may be dug out in preparation for this new collection.

First-aid volunteers are missing an opportunity if they do not try their recently acquired technique on sandlot football victims.

Although the new road to Alaska is to be completed by December 1, the hot dog stands will not be erected until after the war.

Automobiles remaining in operation in the northern sector are beginning to yearn for some anti-freeze.

It must be wonderful to be a stoic, one of those strong brave persons who suffer in silence. . . . They may be in agony but they bear their grief. They have a bad tooth that's jumping up and down like a pile-driver but they smile and smile. They're bored but they make the best of things and are polite. . . . It must be wonderful to be a stoic. . . . I've never met one of them.

Marshall Maslin

I've a friend so exact in all ways that it's painful to think of him. If you move a book in his library just half an inch, he knows it. . . . When he was a boy he would lay a hair across his personal soap so he'd know if his brothers or sisters used it. If they did, the hair would be gone. If they didn't it would still be there the next time he used it. . . . You might think this friend is a worried, driven, nervous fellow—so exact, so careful about everything. But he isn't.

Walking along the street, you hear scraps of conversation that set your curiosity on edge. But you never learn. . . . A friend of mine who used to be a burglar heard a man say to a companion: "Well, Napoleon knocked over a chair when he went to Moscow." My friend said: "There's a man who spends his days in the public library and his nights in other people's houses." Knocking over a chair is a burglar's phrase for bungling work; the learned burglar used it to describe Napoleon's disastrous expedition into Russia. . . . He would have used it about Hitler, too.

I heard a man say: "My wife always looks to see how large a tip I leave. She's not stingy, so why does she do it?" . . . Search me.

Do you remember the old fashioned family menus? Rolled oat mush. Cornstarch pudding. Round steak cooked in flour. Dumplings. Codfish balls. Bread pudding. Whole hominy. Hot bread. Home-made cottage cheese. Molasses. Chow chow. Tapioca pudding. What's happened to all those things?

You start thinking about stoves and you end up in tapioca pudding. It must be wonderful to have a mind that stays on the highway and doesn't wander all over the fields to get lost among the buttercups.

Chileans Worry Over Vulnerability, C. P. Stewart Says

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Argentina and Chile, two Latin American republics accused by State Undersecretary

Charles P. Stewart

Summer Welles of permitting Axis agents to operate in their midst, to the United Nations' disadvantage, are staying neutral, alone among the new world's countries, for a couple of different reasons.

Neither one is in fact, anti-Yankee. Undersecretary Welles made his speech the other day, charging that Axis representatives, whom they're sheltering, have used their facilities to inform Nazi U-boatmen of United Nations' ship movements, resulting in the loss of several of the democracies' vessels.

Correctly informed. They resented and denied it, but Summer undoubtedly was correctly informed. Chilean President Juan Antonio Rios went through the motions of being so much offended that he postponed and may cancel a visit he was scheduled to make to Washington soon. Argentine President Ramon S. Castillo had no such visit on his program and consequently couldn't cancel it, but his ambassador complained to the state department.

Summer Welles, though, not only has military information to keep him posted; he also is an old Latin American resident, on diplomatic business, and knows what things are like south of the Rio Grande, from personal experience.

Chile More Irritated

From the circumstances of President Rios's abandonment of his northern tour it may appear that Summer's remarks irritated Chile more than they did Argentina.

The contrary is the truth, as between the pair of presidents.

Dr. Rios is pro-United States. He's of rather recent election, and his victory over a less friendly aspirant was a matter of congratulation in Washington. It's obvious that he passed up his trip hitherward for Chilean reasons; not because of his own preference.

Chile is pro-U. S. A., too, generally speaking. As I've had occasion to remark before, however, the republic has a tremendously long Pacific waterfront, with little back of it and no available defense to speak of. It's afraid of air raids from Japan, unless we protect it, and it's up to us to make the Chileans some promises if we want to align 'em with us.

Economic Motive

Dr. Castillo, oppositely, while not exactly pro-Axis, inclines to hope for a German post-war survival. Argentina's natural production is in tremendous demand by most of the Axis powers, but practically duplicates Uncle Sam's. Therefore, on economic grounds, he doesn't want to see the Axis's purchasing capacity extinguished.

The Argentines, as a people, are democrats, but their commercial upper class is mindful of its markets later and doesn't want to see 'em dried up by too competitive a triumph. The hot polio's congressional lower house of representatives in Buenos Aires repeatedly has voted co-operation with the United Nations and the rest of Latin America—not necessarily war, but affiliation with 'em. President Castillo, though, in control of the more plutocratic senate, has counteracted 'em.

As everywhere else on earth, democracy and plutocracy (rather, in these days, than democracy) are in conflict.

In Brazil and Mexico and Cuba the democrats are on top. Elsewhere they're predominant.

Plutocrats Rule

In Argentina the plutocrats rule the roost.

In Chile folk are scared. It's easy enough to distinguish between 'em.

Mexico and the Central and northern South American countries (even those on the northwestern coast) are taken care of.

Militarily the Southeast's merely watchful.

Southwesterly it's anxious.

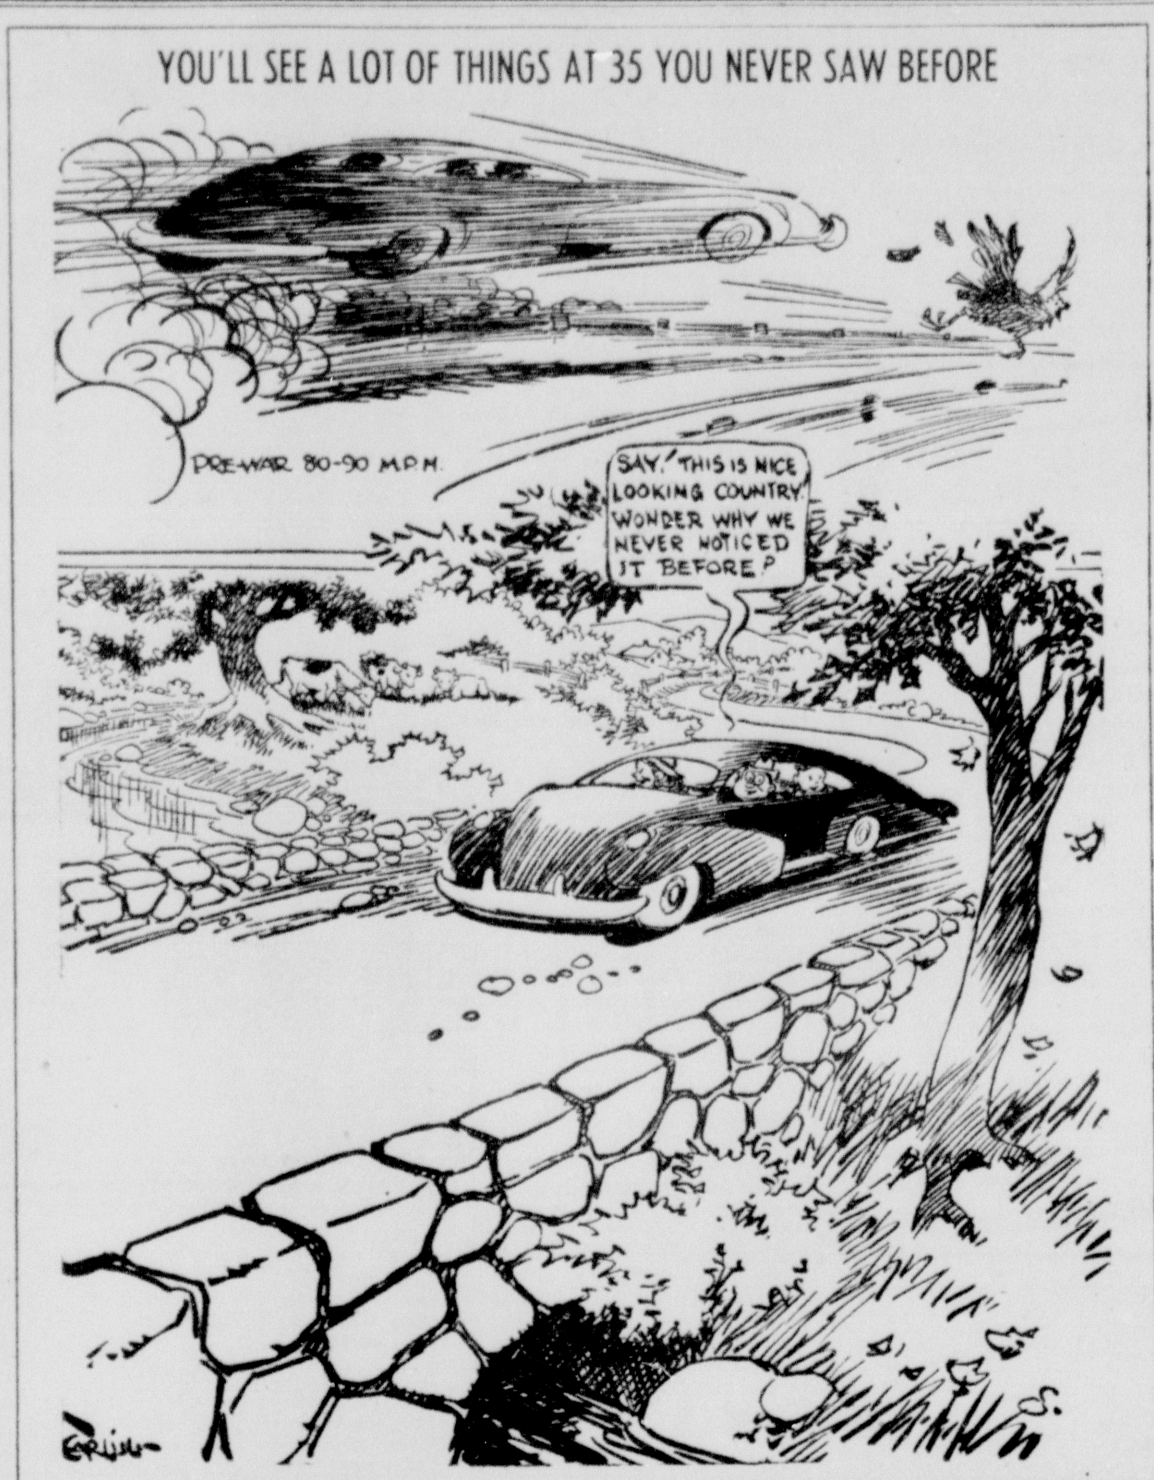

The situation's both economic and

Crop Destruction Order Is an Amazing Thing at This Time, Sullivan Declares

By MARK SULLIVAN

A farmer in Texas wrote a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, and sent a copy to me. The Texas farmer complained:

Mark Sullivan

"It was a bitter dose to me to be forced to plow up the 1.7 acres of cotton overplanted on my farm, since I have been taught all my life that willful waste is wasteful waste." And since this thing happened to me, I have paid particular attention to other portions of the state, and I find the same thing is happening throughout the entire cotton area. Small plots are being plowed up on many farms. In many cases, the plow-up occurs after the bolls have matured. This is what happened in my own case."

Educational Campaign Help Is Encouraging, Hagerstown Reader Says

Editor The Cumberland News:

Believing as I do that when it was said of the newspapers that they were and are the brief chronicles of the time, to show virtue her own image, scorn her own features, and the very age and body of time, his form and pressure, labor its shortcomings and capital its mistakes, it is encouraging to note the publicity you give the launching of an educational campaign for safety by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in conjunction with the Western Maryland Railway Company, and I feel that the many readers and subscribers who are members of William McKaig Lodge No. 440, join me in expressions of appreciation for this and the many other courtesies shown them.

In these times we, all of us, fight for ideals and it is encouraging to feel that the newspapers are our fortresses. Again I thank you and may your circle of readers and friends ever increase.

Very truly yours,

Double Talk In Washington

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

Not the least of our complaints against Washington is its all too frequent resort to a sort of "double talk." Thus, on the one hand, Leon Henderson warns that our living standards must go down to the depression levels of 1932-33 if the United States is to make good on its production commitments to the rest of the world. On the other hand, the War Labor Board speaks of maintaining the standard of living as of January 1, 1941, and proceeds to approve wage increases with that in mind.

It just doesn't make sense, and there is good reason to suspect that Washington knows it doesn't make sense. Why, then, this continuing contradiction in terms, this misleading make-believe? It is simply because the administration is reluctant to face the facts.

It will not, for example, face the fact that "inflationary gap"—some $20,000,000,000 or $30,000,000,000 which represents the excess of purchasing power over the goods available for consumption. If it did face the fact, it would be forced to confess that this is true: either prices can rise until the total price of goods and service equals purchasing power. The farmer in Texas wrote a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, and sent a copy to me. The Texas farmer complained:

"It was a bitter dose to me to be forced to plow up the 1.7 acres of cotton overplanted on my farm, since I have been taught all my life that willful waste is wasteful waste." And since this thing happened to me, I have paid particular attention to other portions of the state, and I find the same thing is happening throughout the entire cotton area. Small plots are being plowed up on many farms. In many cases, the plow-up occurs after the bolls have matured. This is what happened in my own case."

The information surprised me. I had supposed that plowing under crops was a thing of the past—that it belonged back in 1933, when they slaughtered young hogs and turned them into fertilizer. So I wrote the Texas farmer and asked if it was this present year he had been required to plow under some of the cotton.

This Year

The Texas farmer replied yes, it was this year. He enclosed the official notice he had received from the Department of Agriculture. It was a mimeographed letter, with blanks to fill in with the exact number of acres, the serial number of the farm, and the like—evidently a form letter in general use. Here, in part, is the letter—it is an extraordinary document to read in the year of our Lord 1942:

United States Department of Agriculture

Agricultural Adjustment Agency

"August 22, 1942

"Farm Serial No. 16080

"Dear Producer:

"Measurements of the above farm serial number shows there is 1.7 acres planted to cotton.

Since your acreage allotment is twelve acres, your farm is overplanted 1.7 acres.

"The regulations governing excess cotton acreage require that it be destroyed within ten days from date of this notice."

That letter will strike many as amazing. It is amazing—to those who do not know what goes on. But thousands of cotton raisers have received that same letter (varied as to the acreage). And thousands of other farmers raising other crops have received similar letters applicable to their crops. The letter is amazing in the sense that farmers are told they must destroy a portion of their growing crops. It is further amazing, and dismaying, that the farmers of the country are subjected to such policing and penalization.

Alternative Is Given

The farmer can avoid plowing up part of his crop, he is given an alternative. The alternative is a money penalty. The penalty is heavy, about half the value of the overplanted cotton. The letter already quoted continues:

"If this is not done [that is, if the farmer does not plow up his excess acres] there will be a penalty for overplanting . . .

power, or purchasing power can be reduced until it equals the supply of goods at current prices.

You will be issued a red marketing card, and excess cotton marketed will be penalized 8 cents per pound."

It is not merely the penalty, it is the policing mechanism. This is illustrated by the allusion above to a "red marketing card." There are other details of the policing, even more onerous. (The wording of the official notice here quoted is so tautological that I must condense.) If the farmer decides to accept the first alternative, and plow under his cotton acreage, he must first make a cash deposit. This is to pay the expense of an agent coming to his farm to check up and see if the farmer has actually plowed under. The farmer is obliged to pay the expense of having himself policed.

Intricate Mechanism

What is here recited is part of an intricate mechanism, operating over several farm crops, called AAA—Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The officials who operate AAA make a defense of it. In fairness I suppose I should here state the defense. But to state the defense would call for stating also the objections to the defense. The whole thing is just too involved for the space here available. I confine myself to one point, made by the Texas farmer already quoted.

In the present year, is there, or was there, any possible justification for plowing under any crop, specifically cotton? True, for several years, more cotton was planted than could be marketed at a good price. To keep the price up, by reducing the planting, was the purpose and justification of AAA.

More than Cotton

But cotton is no more than cotton. It is also cotton-seed oil—that is, fats. And there is scarcity, it is needed for munitions, the government asks housewives to save it. As the point is put in the letter of the Texas farmer:

"It does not make sense to me when my wife and other wives in the community are encouraged to strain bacon fat, to secure fats for munition uses—and then force the farmers to plow under more fat in the cotton seed than a whole neighborhood could salvage from meat scraps in a year."

Inhibitions

From the Pittsburgh Press

Introducing a bill to prohibit sale of alcoholic beverages in or near military camps, Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma asserts that drinking "results in reckless abandonment of one's inhibitions."

Well, war itself demands abandonment of quite a few inhibitions, including the one against unpleasant and dangerous work and the one against killing one's fellow man. Soldiers and sailors considered mature enough to fight and, if necessary, to die for their country are not likely, we suspect, to appreciate the Senator's suggestion that they can't be trusted to look-out for their own inhibitions in their off-duty hours.

However, our Josh Lees never seem to feel the slightest inhibition against attempting to regulate other people's morals by law.

Coupon Clippers Favored in Tax, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. — One fundamental rule of constitutional law in America has been that citizens shall be treated alike. The supreme-court has as its motto across the front of the building: "Equal Justice under Law." If a penal statute is passed or a tax rate is applied, it usually means that no group of citizens shall be affected while another group is exempt. If there's an income tax law passed, it usually has meant that while the rates might be different based on capacity to pay, a person in one particular kind of job should not be taxed more or less heavily than someone in another kind of a money-producing position.

Now comes the Roosevelt administration and without specific authority from Congress not only insists on cutting down salaries fixed long before the outbreak of war but it grants an exemption to the idle rich and the coupon clippers who live on inherited wealth.

David Lawrence

Gross Inequalities Seen

The man who has risen by his own toil from the bottom of the ladder may not now earn in excess of $25,000 net income while the man who got his income from dividends or interest can earn $100,000 or $1,000,000 a year and be subjected to a less burdensome tax rate than the salaried man who earns in excess of $25,000 net income per year. Even as between salaries men, the executive order creates inequalities and gross inequities. The thrifty man who has paid his debts and is free of encumbrances is prohibited from collecting from his employer more than $25,000 while another man who has "fixed obligations" and debts can earn far more than $25,000 a year.

Right Not Bestowed

Congress did not bestow on the chief executive the right to fix salaries at $25,000 or anywhere else for the good reason that if the president can today select the $25,000 level he can tomorrow select the $3,000 level. As a matter of fact there would be far more logic in fixing all salaries and wages in America at somewhere around $3,000 a year because after all there are only 40,000 persons out of 130,000,000 who are in the $25,000 class. It certainly would fit the "greater equality" idea better if the $3,000 level were chosen than the $25,000.

Congress, however, has refused to fix any maximum. Indeed it declined specifically to adopt the proposal made by the Treasury department earlier this year in behalf of the president to limit salaries to $25,000 by means of taxation. When Congress passed the anti-inflation law it was really seeking to eliminate increases in wages and salaries and it gave the president certain power to "adjust wages or salaries to the extent that he finds it necessary in any case to correct gross inequities and also aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

But this plainly refers to correction of abuses that have arisen in war contracts or in salary payments over and above what has been the recipient's pay for many years. By no stretch of the phraseology of either the preamble or the main provisions of the law and by no rule of fairness can the language of Congress now be honestly made to mean that pre-war salaries must be reduced.

No Standard Set

Can a $25,000 limit be justified as a "gross inequity?" Congress prescribed no standard and the supreme court has said this must be done if legislative power is delegated to the executive. What proof is there that a $26,000 salary net income constitutes a "gross inequity" and a $24,000 salary does not?

The anti-inflation law is not a revenue bill as would be valid under the Sixteenth amendment to the constitution which provides for an income tax. It is a piece of war legislation justifiable only as a measure to prevent increases in purchasing power. But when it seeks to bring about deflation of certain individual incomes and to use the machinery of the revenue laws to accomplish a punitive purpose, the courts some day may hold it unconstitutional. Employers may then find themselves with lawsuits filed by employees demanding payment of sums in excess of $25,000 due on past salaries.

Power Usurped

The $25,000 net income limit, however, is a far greater danger to the man in the $3,000 class than any piece of governmental restriction ever promulgated for it means Congress no longer regulates anybody's income but the executive has in effect usurped the power to confiscate 100 percent of all individual incomes over and above any level he cares to select.

Psychology Has Practical Place in Memorizing

Ability to Master Selection after Rest Is Basal Phenomenon

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

You may recall times when as a pupil or student trying to memorize a selection of poetry or prose you gave yourself to keep at it for an hour or more at a sitting. At the end of that time you may have given up in despair. Yet, wonder to relate, when you returned to it after ample recreation or a night's rest, you were happily surprised at your progress. What seemed more remarkable, indeed, was your ability perhaps to say the whole thing through correctly without seeing it again.

I recall that while in normal school we were required to do considerable memorizing in a literature course. Regularly I attacked this job as the last thing before "lights out" time, and usually had to go to bed before I had mastered the selection. But I soon discovered that it generally required but little effort to learn this very selection by heart the next morning.

A Basal Phenomenon

At that time, I believed this phenomenon was just some mental quirk in me. But several years ago, I heard a paper read that reported an experiment clearly demonstrating this to be a basal phenomenon. Many years earlier other experiments revealed that several brief periods of intensive effort at memorizing are more effective than a long, continuous period equivalent to the total of those shorter periods.

There is a time when one should give up, to resume effort later, even in trying to solve a hard problem, as in mathematics or physics. Many a student after "sleeping on" such a problem has been able to solve it on waking in the night or in the morning.

Practical Psychology

I once heard an aunt of mine say that when she taught mental arithmetic she would, after laboring long in vain at night to solve a knotty problem, put the mental arithmetic book under her pillow to wake up later in the night and solve it. This plan worked so well she resorted to it often.

She would have got the same result with the book under her feet, or on the table. Really, during her sleep the successful associations went on while the unsuccessful ones dropped out.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My boy, 13, is always wanting me to let him experiment at cooking and baking. Should I let him?

A. Yes, indeed. I hope you encourage him in this interest and give him the opportunity now and then to plan and cook a meal for the family. Be very reasonable and appreciative of his achievements in this direction and don't boss too much.

In the Republic of Colombia, South America, one of the first commercial airlines in the world was inaugurated.

Shortage of Physicians Being Met With Adjustments on Doctors' Part

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The wartime shortage of doctors and nurses is being met by adjustments on the part of the doctors. It means extra work and sacrifice on their part and so far as my observation goes, they are showing great ingenuity and resourcefulness under the new conditions.

There is no question that during the last twenty years the doctors have been spoiled. It used to be that a baby was born in a hospital only when some very grave complication was expected. But of late it has gotten to be a regular thing. Hospitals have conducted large maternity wards with every facility for delivery and after-care. There is no question that this makes things smoother for the doctor. Instead of making a round of visits from house to house, often widely separated, he can see ten patients under one roof in a tenth of the time.

Largely because it is convenient, the fiction has grown up that it is better and safer to have a baby in the hospital.

Debatable Question

This is very debatable. It certainly, so far as my experience goes, is not more comfortable. Give me my own bed, my own meals, the quiet of home in preference to any hospital that I have ever been in. The argument that seems to clinch things for the layman is that the hospital has things handy for an emergency, but this is largely a myth and with a very little trouble the necessary articles for safeguarding mother and child can be provided at home.

A sign of the times along this line is illustrated by a doctor friend of mine, Dr. Edmund Lisack, of Concordia, Missouri, who has invented a delivery bed for home obstetrics. It gives the obstetrician all the practical operative positions necessary for home obstetrics and is just as useful in every way as the obstetric table provided in the maternity room of the average hospital.

The local furniture dealers carry the beds in stock and rent them to the patients for a small fee. The bed is in parts and can be taken down and put up on short notice.

Shortage Increasing

I heard the other day of a hospital where forty-eight registered nurses on their list were called away to military service at one fell swoop. Of course, the interne situation is bad in the smaller hospitals and resident physicians just don't exist. And the condition is likely to continue for a number of years.

In the freshman class of a medical school known to me seventy-nine out of eighty-five of the class has signed up for the navy and will be called up in 1947. If that is a criterion followed by the rest of the country, only six out of eighty-five doctors will enter civil practice for many years.

Such ideas as those of Dr. Lisack therefore are very timely and could very well be taken up by his city colleagues.

Questions and Answers

M. R. E.:—What causes risings? The tenants on the plantation where I am now living are always having risings. Is it due to lack of certain foods or uncleanness? They seem to eat corn bread, peas, beans and pork. I feel the lack of fruit in their diet is one cause. They do not have toilets or baths in their houses.

Answer: Risings, as I understand it, are boils and carbuncles. Farm laborers are particularly susceptible to infections on the fingers and around the fingernails which they convey to the skin on other parts of the body by scratching. Lack of fresh food, particularly fruit, in the diet undoubtedly contributes by lowering the body's resistance.

Price Ceiling Planned For Rayon Hosiery

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—A specific price ceiling for women's Rayon hose will be issued soon, the Office of Price Administration has announced.

In the meantime, OPA suggested that buyers carefully compare prices with those of last March to make certain they are not being overcharged.

"There is no excuse for any increase in prices of Rayon hosiery," OPA said. "Prices of Rayon yarn have been stabilized since October, 1941, and converters' charges were established in June of this year on the basis of March, 1941, levels."

Furthermore, as hosiery manufacturers become more familiar with the problems involved in knitting Rayon hosiery, their cost factors are more likely to be reduced than increased."

Congress Makes Gold Rush Official

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—An act of Congress has approved a brief but lucrative gold rush back in 1940.

A huge earth slide forced 50 men of a dam construction crew into temporary idleness—and at the same time it revealed some interesting earth and rock. The men started panning it, found gold and in two days took out $30,000 worth.

But the area was "withdrawn" government land and it took special legislation to straighten things out. Now the men can legally enjoy their share-and-share-alike earnings of $600 each.

Stentor, a native of early Greece, was said to have a voice as loud as that of fifty men, and the word "stentorian" derives from him.

Lee Would Dry Up Areas near Soldier Camps

Senator Promises Fight To Bring about Partial Prohibition

By FRANCIS J. KELLY
WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP)—Senator Lee (D-Okla.) has announced that he will urge the Senate to amend the 18 and 19-year-old draft bill to impose prohibition in areas around all military and naval posts.

The Senate draft bill, similar to the one which swept through the House by a 345 to 16 vote Saturday, is expected to be called up some time this week, probably after consideration of a $6341,000,000 supplemental appropriation bill and final action on the nation's biggest tax measure.

"When our sons of 18 and 19 are needed for military service," it seems to me it is not asking too much that they be given the protection this amendment would afford," Lee said.

"A training camp is a school teaching the most serious business in the world. Liquor is not allowed to be sold in or near the schools these boys would be attending if they were not needed in the war effort."

Lee Will Do His Best
"I shall press for adoption of this amendment with every power at my command."

The military committee previously rejected the proposal but Lee said that would not deter him from offering it on the floor.

It would prohibit the sale, possession, use or gift of all alcoholic beverages, including beer, in army and navy posts and within surrounding areas to be designated by the secretary of war. The secretary of war would act in the case of naval stations as well as army camps.

Such a step has been urged by the Women's Christian Temperance Union and other organizations. Both senators and representatives have been inserting in the congressional record in recent weeks petitions from constituents asking restrictions on the use of liquor by soldiers and sailors.

Predicts Speedy Action
Senator Gurney (R-SD), author of the Senate draft bill, said he thought the lowering of the draft age would be approved speedily by the Senate. The administration's plan to call it up Tuesday, if possible, may be upset if Minority Lead-

Simplest Stitchery

By Laura Wheeler

Let these bluebirds fly onto that set of kitchen towels that you need for your gift list. The lazy-daisy flowers can be in the kitchen color. There are seven motifs in this pattern. Pattern 459 contains a transfer pattern of seven motifs averaging 5 1/2 x 6 inches; illustrations of stitches; materials required.

Send eleven cents in coins for this pattern to the Cumberland News, Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

er McNary (R-Ore) insists upon postponement until absent senators can return.

The House passed its bill only five days after President Roosevelt declared that induction of "teen-age soldiers was inevitable. The House rejected amendments which would have lowered the minimum draft age only to 19 and have cut the maximum limit from 45 to 40. Leaders also blocked a move to forbid the army from sending men into battle with less than twelve months' training.

Senator McKellar (D-Tenn), floor manager for the supplemental appropriation bill, predicted 115 passage tomorrow. It contains $5,593,000,000 for the navy, including $2,862,000,000 for 14,611 additional planes.

Only formal action by the House and Senate was needed to send the bulky new tax bill to the president. A joint conference committee reached final agreement on its terms late yesterday.

Tax Vote This Week

The most drastic innovation was the five per cent "Victory Tax" on individual income over $24 a year. Individual income tax exemptions were lowered and the rates raised sharply. The combined normal and surtax on corporations goes up to 40 per cent, with a 90 per cent levy on excess profits.

The House, where all revenue legislation originates, will act first on the conference report. Senate leaders hope to follow through on the measure Tuesday, placing it before the president by mid-week.

An indication of the next important legislation to come before Congress came with the announcement that the Senate Military committee would open hearings Wednesday on four manpower control bills offered by Senators Austin (R-Vt.), Hill (D-Ala.), Bilbo (D-Miss) and Taft (R-Ohio).

Methodist Center Will Be Dedicated November 2 In Pittsburgh Area

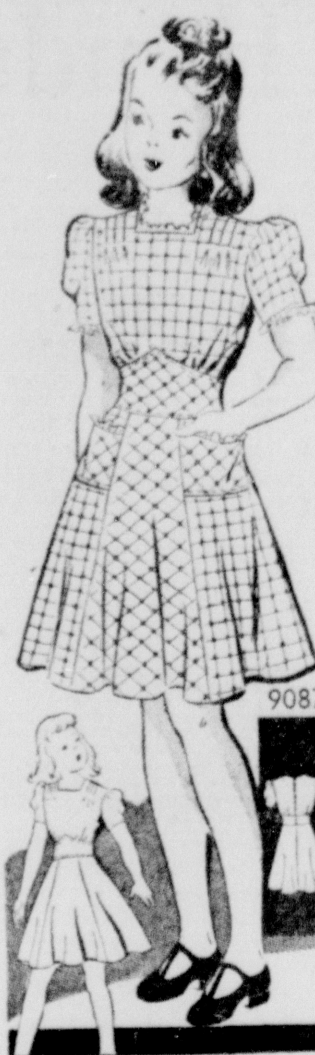

Methodists throughout the Pittsburgh area, which includes southwestern New York, western Maryland, and West Virginia, are joining in the dedication of the Methodist center in Pittsburgh October 25 to November 2. District superintendents of the three conferences will take part in the services.

Bishop James H. Straughn, resident Bishop of the Pittsburgh area, and chairman of the arrangements, announces that twelve outstanding services are being planned. Seven bishops, including Bishops J. C. Broomfield, Herbert Welch, Adna W. Leonard, Francis J. McConnell, John M. Moore and Edwin H. Hughes, in addition to Bishop Straughn, will participate.

Special programs are being planned by the Woman's Society of Christian Service, the Lay Activities, Smithfield Street church, and the Youth Fellowship for the week-night meetings. Choirs of leading Methodist churches will sing at the services. The formal dedication service will take place at 10:30 a. m. Monday, November 2.

This series of services will mark the culmination of a long-time project to establish a downtown headquarters for all the Methodist agencies and to extend their denominational influence in the community.

Wesleyan Choir Will Give Concert At P-T.A. Meeting

PARSONS, W. Va., Oct. 19.—The Wesleyan Choir of Buckhannon, W. Va., will present a concert at the November meeting of the Parsons Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. George Donalds, association president, announced Saturday, at the first meeting of the group this year.

Mrs. Donalds said that the Program committee had completed arrangements for entertainment at each of the monthly meetings for the present year.

Two new projects were introduced at Saturday's meeting. One, raising funds for band uniforms, was assigned the high school division and a library project was assigned to the graded school group.

Ralph Rowland, Parsons, forest warden, was the principal speaker at the meeting which was conducted by Mrs. M. E. Hillard, chairman of the program committee.

YOU'RE GEARED TO

Split-Second Time

WHEN YOU'RE TRAINING TO WIN YOUR WINGS AS A BOMBARDIER

HE'S A BOMBARDIER. He's the business man of this B-17 bomber crew. His office is the "greenhouse" of transparent plastic in the nose of the ship. And he works there on split-second time. But when those busy "office hours" are over—well, just look below and watch him enjoying a Camel—the favorite cigarette on land, on sea, and in the air.

A PACK OF CAMELS IS STANDARD EQUIPMENT WITH ME. THEY SUIT ME TO A 'T'

THE "T-ZONE" where cigarettes are judged

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you...and how it affects your throat. For your taste and throat are absolutely individual to you.

Based on the experience of millions of smokers, we believe Camels will suit your "T-ZONE" to a "T." Prove it for yourself!

FOR TASTE, FOR MY THROAT, CAMELS ARE T.O.P.S.

JERRY LORIGAN, who forges bombs on a split-second schedule, is just as partial to Camels as the man who lays those bombs on the target. "I've smoked Camels for years," says Jerry. "They don't get my throat, and they don't tire my taste. They're tops!"

The favorite cigarette with men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard is Camel. (Based on actual sales records in Post Exchanges, Sales Commissaries, Ship's Service Stores, Ship's Stores, and Canteens.)

Plane Spotters Plan New Post In Lonaconing

Observing Tower Is Erected in Byer's Lot on Scotch Hill

LONACONING, Oct. 19.—Airplane spotters of Observation Post No. 92, held a meeting last night at the home of the chief observer, Miss Anne Sloan, to discuss plans for completing the new post which has been erected in Byer's lot on Scotch hill.

The spotters voted unanimously to have the exterior painted white and the interior cream with linoleum as the floor covering. Mrs. Jones donated a coal stove to be used in the post and Mrs. Effie Davis offered a storage place at her home for the coal and wood that will be used to heat the building.

Women of Lonaconing who have volunteered to take time off from their regular duties to "watch our skies" are Mesdames Rachel Jones, Nellie Rankin, Clara Stevenson, Janet Orr, Samuel McFarlane, Katherine Meyers, Margaret Atkinson, Mary Scott, Nellie McIntyre, Elizabeth Francis, James Brown and Katherine Wattenschmidt.

The Mesdames Winnie Stakem, Daniel Nolan, Martha Humphrey, Margaret Gowans, Katherine Lodge, Jean Boyd, Thomas Wilson, Ralph Reed, Mary Ann Moore, Sarah Buckholtz and Effie Davis.

Those who are appointed captains for the week days are Mrs. Nellie Rankin, Miss Nellie Sloan, Mrs. Mary Scott, Mrs. Clara Stevenson, Mrs. Effie Davis, Mrs. Jean Boyd and Miss Catherine McFarlane.

Survey Flood Damage

Mrs. Edith Petlock, nursing consultant, and Miss Janet Long, general field representative, of the Washington Red Cross office, and Mrs. W. Lee Withruff, chairman of the Allegany County Chapter American Red Cross, Mrs. Louise Coulahan Dean, executive secretary, and Miss Jeanette Bonig, Associated Charities, visited in Lonaconing to estimate the damage caused by the recent flood.

It is announced that the Red Cross will have a representative in the Red Cross room at the Community house, Lonaconing, on Tuesday and Wednesday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Persons who suffered losses during the flood should report during the two days.

Brief Mention

The Lonaconing Homemakers will meet Thursday, October 29, instead of the regular date, October 22, because the Rural Women's Short Course dinner will be held in Lonaconing on October 22. Mrs. Samuel McFarlane, president, announces the change in the date of meeting.

Miss Margaret Loar, home-demonstration agent, Cumberland, will talk on "Economy on School Clothes" at the 4-H club to be held Tuesday, October 27, at the home of Miss Peggy Arnold, Delmond.

The teachers meeting of the Presbyterian church will be held Thursday night instead of Tuesday.

St. Paul's Church To Send Presents To Men in Service

Service Roster Will Be Dedicated, Frostburg Pastor Announces

FROSTBURG, Oct. 19.—Announcement was made Sunday at all services of St. Paul's Lutheran church that the congregation would send Christmas gifts to all members of the church or Sunday school, who are serving with the armed forces of the United States.

A committee was appointed consisting of Mesdames Arch Davis, Joseph Durst, Alvin Kreiling, Harry G. Shupe and Elizabeth Thomas, together with Messrs. Joseph T. Downey, U. B. F. Edwards, James Close, Rudolph Nickel and John Keller, to accept contributions from members of the congregation or their friends.

This committee will also select and purchase such gifts as will be appreciated by men who receive them. The contributions are all to be in the hands of the committee not later than Saturday, October 31, so that the gifts may be selected, wrapped for mailing, and put into the mails by Nov. 3. Several of the gifts will have to be sent overseas, to members serving in other lands.

At the same time, it was announced that a service roster containing the names of members of the congregation or Sunday School now in the armed forces, had been received, and as soon as accurate information concerning the names of these men, their camp address, and their service, could be ascertained, the roster would be made up, and dedicated with appropriate services. A list of those who have subscribed to the Service Men's Christmas Gift fund will be posted, near the service roster, and a copy sent with each gift that goes out from the congregation.

A list of those who have subscribed to the Service Men's Christmas Gift fund will be posted, near the service roster, and a copy sent with each gift that goes out from the congregation.

At the same time, it was announced that a service roster containing the names of members of the congregation or Sunday School now in the armed forces, had been received, and as soon as accurate information concerning the names of these men, their camp address, and their service, could be ascertained, the roster would be made up, and dedicated with appropriate services. A list of those who have subscribed to the Service Men's Christmas Gift fund will be posted, near the service roster, and a copy sent with each gift that goes out from the congregation.

If you've turned in all your scrap---good work! You've got the thanks of the boys at the front. But don't stop there. From now on be a scrap spotter. Whenever you see a lot of scrap metal that ought to be put into the fight---report it!

Remember, the need for scrap won't end until the war does. And the war can't end our way if the steel mills shut down. So keep scrap on your mind constantly---when you're walking---when you're riding---when you're working.

Watch for metal that isn't being used. Keep an eye out for abandoned machinery and structures. Nothing is too big to be broken up and carted away. And nothing is too small to save a fighting man's life!

Report the things you find and we'll contact the proper authorities. Whether it's a wrecked car rusting in the weeds---an old, unused bridge---or a forgotten saw mill... we want to hear about it. Never mind what it will cost to get it out, we'll get things moving---because our soldiers need that metal!

Isn't it little enough to ask? While our boys are hunting Japs and Nazis, will you balk at hunting up the scrap that will help them win their fight? While they are giving their lives will you hesitate to give a little time and thought to this problem?

Make it a point of honor to find and report unused metal. Carry these coupons in your purse or wallet. Then when you spot idle metal, fill one out and send it to this newspaper.

Get going and keep looking. A life may well depend on your sharp eyes!

LOOK FOR THINGS LIKE THESE:

Abandoned mills, wells, bridges.
Abandoned buildings, if metal was used in construction.
Deserted quarries, with old machinery and equipment.
Abandoned Farm Equipment.
Smashed-up cars.
Unused railways or street railways, even if trackage is paved over.
Old iron fences and railings.
Metal that isn't needed or isn't being used.

Mrs. E. E. Shreve Marks Ninety-sixth Birthday at Home

Aged Grant County Resident Likes To Talk of Civil War Days

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 19—Yesterday seventy-five relatives and friends of Mrs. Emily E. Shreve, Landes, gathered at her log-cabin home in the mountains near here to help celebrate her ninety-sixth birthday.

None enjoyed the event more than the ninety-six year old lady who enjoys good health and is quite active. She helps with the general house work and spends much of her time sewing. Mrs. Shreve is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Kimble, Upper Tract. She likes to talk about how she helped carry food to her aged father and wounded soldiers who were in the woods near her home.

She now has four great-grandsons serving in the present war and is looking forward to their return home when she will learn more about the present war, she says.

She stays with her daughter, Miss Hannah Shreve and youngest son, Sheridan Shreve, Landes. Other children living are Arnold Shreve, Maysville, Mrs. Ida Getz, Pansy and A. B. Shreve, Petersburg.

She has twenty grandchildren and seventeen great-grandchildren. Mrs. Shreve has attended the old Judy church near her home "as far back as she can remember."

PROPOSED TYPING FEE AT CENTRAL HIGH WILL BE AIRED TONIGHT

LONACONING, Oct. 19—Proposing a fee of $2 for students of Central high school taking typing, parents of the students will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the high school to learn the decision of the board of education on the matter.

The proposed fee was suggested by Arthur F. Smith, principal, at a meeting last month to cover breakage, but the parents of the students taking typing made protests and took the matter to the county board of education. The committee, headed by Mrs. Margaret Stakem, states that the local high school is the only public school in the county in which a typing fee is planned.

The committee will meet with other parents of students and Principal Smith tonight to learn the decision of the board.

Theaters Today

"Seven Sweethearts" Is Tender Love Story

Seven of the screen's prettiest and most promising starlets grace the engaging "Seven Sweethearts," which opens tomorrow at the Maryland theater.

Kathryn Grayson as Billie, one of seven lovely daughters who operate a hotel for their eccentric Dutch father, is appealing. Her dramatic voice is heard in two numbers written especially for the picture: "Little Tingle-Tangle Toes" and "You and the Waltz and I."

Van Heflin in the role of Henry, brash newspaperman covering a tulip festival in the quaint Dutch village of Little Delft, Michigan, brings another of his vigorous characterizations to the screen. In contrast to his part in "John Hager," Heflin plays Henry with gaiety and charm and his love scenes with Kathryn Grayson are remarkably tender.

Marsha Hunt, portraying the eldest daughter Regina, a spoiled and stage-struck beauty who tricks Henry into a false elopement, handles her role convincingly.

Cecilia Parker, Frances Raeburn, Dorothy Morris, Frances Rafferty and Peggy Moran, the five remaining sisters, bring freshness and vitality to a piquant story.

The able supporting cast includes S. Z. Sakall, Isobel Elsom, Diana Lewis, Louis Howard, Carl Esmond and Louise Beavers.

Merry Film Adventure Has Unique Characters

A band leader who "goes Shakespeare," a jilted Mexican lady bull-fighter seeking vengeance, a once-great stage star forced to team with a jive king, and two screwy press agents with one-track minds!

Such a conglomeration of characters are thrown together with hilarious results in the new Kay Kyser film, "Playmates," now at the Garden.

The popular band leader portrays himself in this riotous comedy with music, while John Barrymore is cast as a Shakespearean actor now on the skids who is trying to land a radio contract to bring the works of the immortal Bard to the air.

Also on the Garden program today is "Secret Agent of Japan," with Preston Foster, Lynn Bari, Sen Young and Janis Carter.

Roy Walker Plays Real Life Reporter

If there is one thing that gets newspapermen peeved at the motion picture people it is the way they are wont to exaggerate newspaper reporters, when depicted on the screen. But to any working newspaper fellow the appearance of Roy Walker as a reporter is always a source of real satisfaction. Walker plays a reporter as he really is.

His true-life characterization of a reporter is convincingly demonstrated in his current work to be seen in Producers Releasing Corporation's new picture, "House of Errors," now at the Embassy theater.

Ever since he graduated from the Los Angeles high school Walker has had a yen to be a newspaperman, but fate seemed to direct him toward the Hollywood studios instead. Every time a newspaper person interviews him, he will start investigating the reporter about his or her work. He has made it his business to pal around with Los Angeles scribes, just like a lot of folks chase fire engines. In this manner he has absorbed the newspaper atmosphere so that when he

Martin Extends Lead in City Scoring Race

Snyder of AHS Relains Second Place in Chase

Bridges Pushes Squires for Third---Three Share Fifth Spot

Fort Hill's "Skinny" Martin, by going over for a touchdown and an extra point last Saturday when the Sentinels opened their Cumberland Valley Athletic League campaign with a 27-0 victory over the Martinsburg (W. Va.) Bulldogs, extended his lead in the race for city scholastic football scoring honors to thirteen points.

Martin, with a total of fifty-one points, has scored eight touchdowns and three extra points in four games while Fullback Don Snyder of Allegany, who didn't have a chance to add to his total last week when the West Siders' scheduled contest with Hagerstown was postponed, is still in second place with thirty-eight markers for three engagements.

Fort Hill's Warren Squires went scoreless in the Martinsburg tussle and still is third, eight points behind Snyder. The Sentinels' Kenny Bridges tallied a touchdown in the Bulldogs contest and is pushing Squires with twenty-four points. Snyder and Squires have each made five touchdowns but the Allegany star has eight extra points to his credit.

Tied for fifth place with eighteen points are Charley Kellough and Don Beck of Allegany and Henry Natale, the top scorer for the LaSalle Explorers. Fred Davis of Fort Hill is eighth with seventeen, Don Whitman of Fort Hill is ninth with fifteen and the Sentinels' Joe Monteleone rounds out the first ten with fourteen.

AHS Offense Is Tops
Completing the list of boys in the two figure class are Carl Hammer-smith, Allegany, thirteen, and Jack Smith of Allegany, Goldie Evans of Fort Hill and Jim Jones of LaSalle, each with twelve.

Both Fort Hill and Allegany are unbeaten and have yet to be scored upon. The Sentinels, in winning four, have piled up 176 points, an average of forty-four per game, while in taking three, the West Siders have gathered 124, an average of forty-one. LaSalle, in splitting even in four contests, has scored fifty-four points to its opponents' twenty-five. The Explorers haven't yielded a point in their last two games, blanking Ridley 41-0 and Alumni 6-0.

Allegany continues to have the edge on the offense while Fort Hill's defense has shown up to the best advantage. In three games, the West Siders have averaged 11.7 first downs and 360 yards while Fort Hill has averaged 10.5 first downs and 338 yards.

On the defense, Sentinel foes have been limited to an average of 89.5 yards per game and Allegany's opponents to sixty-four. Teams met by Fort Hill have averaged only thirty-three yards overland per game.

42 First Downs for F. H.
Fort Hill has made forty-two first downs, 1,207 yards by rushing, 138 yards on ten of seventeen passes and a total of 1,345 yards.

Sentinel foes have been held to fourteen first downs, 132 yards by rushing, 106 yards on ten of forty passes and a total of 238 yards.

Allegany's record on the attack is thirty-five first downs, 780 yards overland, 301 yards on twenty of thirty-eight passes and a total of 1,081 yards gained. The Campers' rivals have made nine first downs, 106 yards by rushing, eighty-three on seven of twenty-eight passes and a total of 192 yards.

A comparison of LaSalle's offensive and defensive records shows thirty-three first downs to twenty-five, 551 yards by rushing to 401, thirteen of thirty-one passes completed for 179 yards to eight of twenty-nine completed for seventy-five yards and a total of 730 yards to 476.

Hardin-Simmons Eleven Hasn't Acquired

Passing Habit---For a Very Good Reason

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
ABILENE, Tex., Oct. 19 (Wide World)—The Hardin-Simmons Cowboys are showing this pass-crazy Southwest a thing or two about football. They have illustrated in adequate fashion that you don't have to pitch the pigskin around—not even a little bit—to win games.

Such an argument would have been considered high treason a month ago. Now, the advocates of pass, pass, pass are willing to listen. You can't turn a deaf ear to an undefeated, untied team—especially one that has just finished cleaning up on two Southwest Conference outposts that long have been noted for their passing habits.

Hardin-Simmons has a ground game that is the granddaddy of them all down here in the southwest. They used it to beat Baylor and Southern Methodist of the Southwest Conference and if you don't believe it's terrific look over these figures: In three games—839 yards running, twenty-eight yards passing.

Meanwhile, the opposition—Baylor, North Texas State and Southern Methodist—were making a combined total of 109 yards running with the ball and 259 in the air.

Coch Warren Woodson looked

around when the Border Conference voted use of freshmen as a war measure. He found Camp Wilson, a 210-pounder, and stuck him in at fullback. When Wilson runs the result is something like a steam-roller.

He already had Rudolf (Little Doc) Mobley, who had won fame as a high school scoring star. Doc was a sophomore.

So the freshman and the second-year man combined their talents.

Well together they have scored all but six of Hardin-Simmons' fifty-four points. Dave Ryan, another freshman, made four on conversions after touchdowns and a safety accounted for the two other points.

Well, Mobley ranks with the top ground-gainers of the nation. He has rolled up 434 yards for an average of almost eight yards each time he has carried the ball. Wilson has gained 331 yards on sixty-four tries.

Wilson and Mobley furnish the one-two punch and Hardin-Simmons has a concrete line (that's what they call it). You can figure that out without seeing the boys work by the fact that only 106 yards were made against the Cowboy forward wall in three games. It features Al Milch at guard, Eddie Sprinkle at tackle, Hal Prescott at end and Jim Callam at center—more boys the coaches would give their right arms to get away from Woodson.

Well, the Cowboys expect to have their second undefeated, untied season in three years. There are six more games to play. A cancellation brought an open date for Oct. 17, but they'll be hitting the road again Oct. 24 when they meet Texas Mines. Following will be Arizona University, West Texas State, Louisiana Tech, Texas Tech and Howard Payne.

The Spotlight

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

Navy-Cadet Upsets

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—What suddenly happened to the zooming Pre-Fights from Iowa, North Carolina and the Great Lakes? Especially Bernie Bierman's Flying Seahawks who had just beaten Minnesota and Michigan?

Here is one answer we get from one of the country's leading college trainers:

"Taking no credit from Notre Dame, Wisconsin or Boston college, I predicted a week ago the pre-flight teams would soon be slipping in a football way. I'll tell you why. In addition to their football play and training these men get from eight to ten hours a day of the roughest sort of physical work—boxing, wrestling, swimming under water, cross country running over obstacles, etc.

"This combination was dead sure to make them football stars. The human system, mentally and physically, in competition can only stand so much. What they have been doing is fine for war, but not for football. Army and Navy squads at West Point and Annapolis face almost the same handicaps. But they don't have to take quite the same physical, all-day poundings. Not quite. More credit to this unbeaten Army team for a great job."

The Thinning Ranks
Among the leaders still moving forward with no dents nor marks upon their football escutcheons we find Alabama, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Illinois, Army and Boston college, unbeaten and untied. There are others, but these are in the spotlight centers. In Alabama, Georgia and Georgia Tech, the South has three of the country's finest teams—and the interesting feature is they meet later in a round-robin scramble. They are the wolf-packs of Dixie. Georgia Tech's record against Notre Dame, Auburn and others is especially creditable, and Georgia with Alabama are both coming on with a rush.

Ohio State, at the present moment, is high up in the Middle West with Illinois and Wisconsin close, and Notre Dame, Michigan and Minnesota something more than slightly dangerous. Ohio State is still the team to beat in that hot and smothering football sector.

Army's Outlook
Army's fine squad, working against handicaps no college teams have to meet, deserves an extra sprig of olive boughs. Red Blaik and his staff had only ten men left from the squad of forty-four that faced Notre Dame last season. His replacements include no outside stars. It is largely a one string team that must face Harvard, Pennsylvania and Notre Dame in order the next three weeks.

Army has a team that combines speed, poise, alertness and rare spirit-headed by Hank Mazur, one of the star backs of the year. It lost four good men to the army air corps and it had three stars removed with broken arms or broken legs.

In the face of these hard blows under able coaching Army stands with Boston college, a powerful outfit. Army's game with Pennsylvania, held to a muddy deadlock by a scrappy Tiger outfit, will be its roughest test—a brilliant show on anything like a dry field. Both have fast, hard hitting backs, and both have strong lines from end to end.

Pennsylvania has the call in reserve strength. This will be a football game. And it might be mentioned that Red Blaik is looking for no romp against Harvard this week.

It Can Happen
Here is one answer to the football merry-go-round of 1942.

Before Saturday Notre Dame, Duke and Mississippi State had been beaten.

They were facing three unbeaten teams, rated high, Iowa Navy, Colgate and Vanderbilt. Yet these three beaten teams ran up ninety-five points to none against the unbeaten, all favorites. Notre Dame, Duke and Mississippi State annihilated their track opponents.

To have favorites is one thing—to have them slaughtered and outclassed is something else. There will be a lot more of this before the season is over. The coaches all know it. There is a strange psychological wave, due to the war, to broken concentration, that no one can figure in advance.

I would say that from now on Boston college has the better chance to come through unbeaten. Alabama, Georgia and Georgia Tech will have trouble making a clean up. Ohio State's fine squad still must tackle Northwestern, Wisconsin, Pittsburgh, Illinois, Michigan and Iowa Navy. That's no ice cream menu.

"Mystery" Horse To Be Invited to Belmont's
'Week of Champions'

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—The "mystery" horse of 1942, Harold A. Clark's Riverland, has been doing such startling stepping this fall that he's going to be asked to join the select set of Whirly, Alsab and Shut Out in the headline event of Belmont's "Week of Champions" next month.

Winner of eight straight races—although disqualified in two of them—Coldstream's four-year-old son is stepping right up into the cream of horse society with one of the engraved invitations to the six-way war relief program that also will include a $10,000 race between the two glamor boys of the two-year-olds, Occupation and Count Fleet.

Showed Little in 1941
Although he's been knocking off everything in sight since early September, Riverland will be just an outsider in the big heat on November 11. For this is the "race" that's supposed to decide everything, not only about the "World Series" between Whirly and Alsab, but also as to just where Shut Out fits into the picture.

No one seems to know much about Riverland. And the least known bit about him is where he's been keeping his ability to pick 'em up and lay 'em down for the past three years. He never raced as a two-year-old in 1940, was out only three times last year and showed little except how not to win races.

Won Laurel Stakes
This year, he has hit just about all stops on the racing merry-go-round going from Chicago to New York to Maryland and way points. As recently as last August, he ran as a plater at Washington Park.

Then he started to show his "git up and go." Moving up into faster company with almost every race, he made a habit of hitting the wire on top. He won the Laurel stakes a week ago, and in his most recent appearance, he finished out in front in the $10,000 Continental handicap at Jamaica, but was disqualified because his jockey, Wayne Wright, grabbed another rider's leg in the stretch run. He may not be good enough for Whirly, Alsab, Shut Out and Co.—but they're going to have to prove it.

Kercheval a Captain
Ralph Kercheval, former Kentucky baseball star, who served the army as a second lieutenant in 1940, is now a captain.

Old Professor Gets Lowdown On a Few Games

Martin Listens In on Monday Morning Class of Grid Coaches

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Old Professor sniffed the air questioningly, then made a wry face as he turned to address his Monday morning class of football coaches.

Old Professor—The atmosphere around here seems to be a little bad. Do you smell anything, gentlemen?

Babe Hollinberry, Washington State—It must be my football team. We were terrible. In fact, we stunk. The whole thing was that our line was outplayed by USC. The Trojans have twice the offense of any team we have met this year.

Jeff Cravath, USC—One football win doesn't make a season. We didn't look so hot losing to Tulane and Ohio State, did we?

Old Professor—You answer that one, please. Mr. Simons, why are you making those peculiar noises?

Claude (Little Monk) Simons, Tulane—Just practicing Georgia yells, professor. I'm just another Georgia rooter now. They had too much for us in every department.

Wally Butts, Georgia—Naturally I think we played a good game. The excellent team work was what pleased me most. The downfield blocking was particularly good.

Old Professor—The Greenies just couldn't get around the block, huh? Nix on that conversation back there, Mr. Meyer.

Nix Spells Victory

Dutch Meyer, TCU—Nix to you, professor. Can't I tell Mr. Norton that it was our quarterback, Emory Nix, who spelled the difference in our game? It was a good, tough game and those Aggies will also be tough for their future opponents to take.

Homor Norton, Texas A. and M.—That hard-luck pass interception beat us, but the Horned Frogs are going places this year with that swell bunch of boys.

Old Professor—Mr. Scanlan, what makes a pass offense click? Quick now. No prompting, please.

Tony Scanlan, Holy Cross—A poor defense, I guess, and we had it against Syracuse. Losing Grigas and Murphy early didn't help, either.

Ossie Solem, Syracuse—We were lucky. Holy Cross has a real good club and will cause trouble for everyone from now on.

Old Professor—Looks like nothing but trouble ahead, it seems. Mr. Elliot, do you ever hear about the Iowa farmer?

Ray Elliot, Illinois—Did I? That Tom Farmer of Iowa is a great passer. That was a grand bunch of Iowa boys and we had a swell game. Both teams seemed a bit sluggish.

The heat, you know. Eddie Anderson, Iowa—They really wanted to win that one. We saw the Illinois team disintegrate before our attack in 1939 just as Illinois disorganized us today. Our Hawks got going only twice.

Old Professor—Mr. Sanders, what is an alibi? Red Sanders, Vanderbilt—Something we haven't got, professor. We simply were defeated by a great team.

Allyn McKee, Mississippi State—After two defeats, our boys finally played the game we knew they were capable of playing, and they came out of the Vandy scrap in good condition, too.

Old Professor—Welcome to our midst, Mr. Pressnell. Any comments?

Sophs Please Hauser
Glenn Pressnell, Nebraska—Not much, professor. Our line played fine ball, but we've got to do something about our offense, but we couldn't do much about it against that Minnesota line. We had a rough row with three Big Ten teams in four games, and were not too deep any place.

George Hauser, Minnesota—I'm pleased with the play of my sophomores, but we've got a long way to go to get any place with the rest of our schedule. I was surprised at the defensive strength of the Nebraska line.

Old Professor—Mr. Myers, please stop shaking hands with yourself. Denny Myers, Boston college—Can't help it, professor. Just congratulating myself. That was a good game to get through without a losing. It'll help our boys a lot. That North Carolina is a whale of a good club.

Lieut. Comm. Jim Crowley, N. C. Navy Pre-Flight School—Boston college has a grand defensive team. Our score was lucky. When we threatened legitimately, they stopped us.

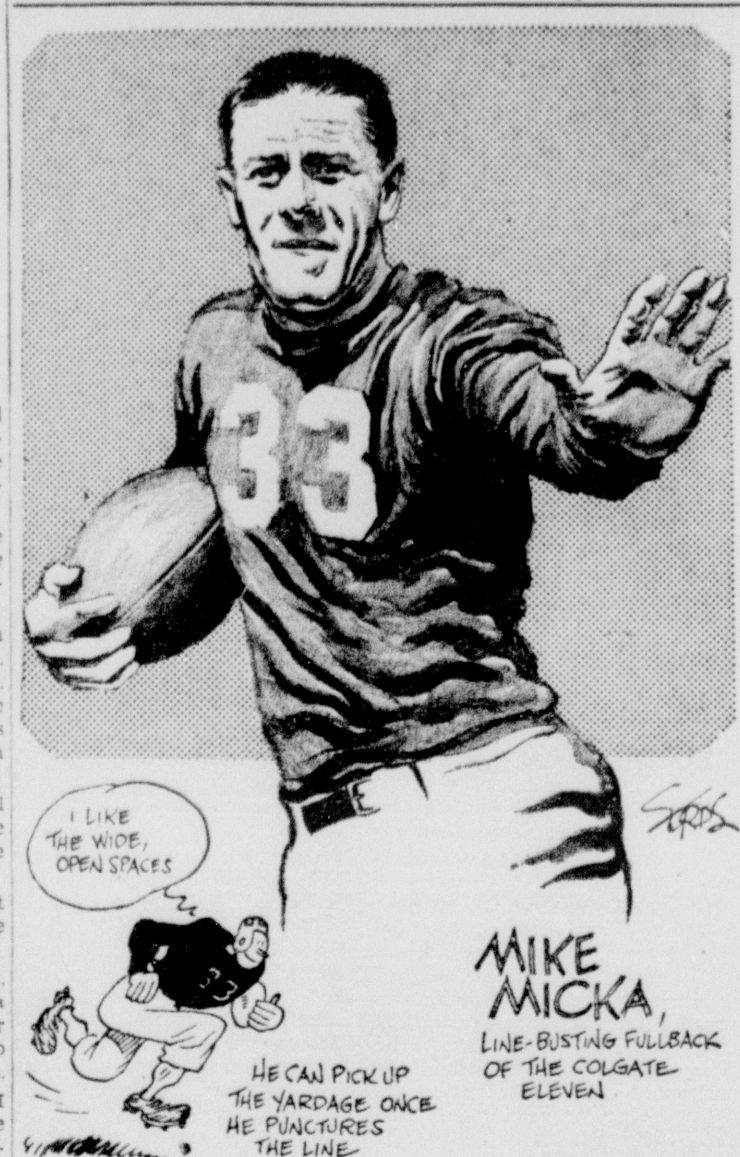

Old Professor—Mr. Barnhill, tell us a story.

John Barnhill, Tennessee—8 to 0. That's the story.

Frank Thomas, Alabama—I'm well pleased with our victory. Joe Demmanovich played a whale of a game at end and John Staples was fine as a sub for George Hecht at guard. Our ends and tackles rushed the passer and played all-around good football. Rush Craft showed himself as a great ball carrier.

Old Professor—And speaking of rushing, our time was up five minutes ago, so please don't rush at the door. It's not trying to throw a football, and it's used to Jams. Good day, gentlemen.

Johnstons Must Eat so Boy Bandit Sends Runnin' Rob Pastor into Ring

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Mr. James Joy Johnston, the Boy Bandit from Liverpool, has swallowed his chagrin over his recent relations with Sergeant Joe Louis, the Indian giver, and is now concentrating on the matter in hand: Namely, next month's groceries.

Whenever the fodder gets low in the Johnston silo, James sends Runnin' Rob Pastor out somewhere to fight for a few meals for the hundreds of Johnstons and scores of Pastors. This basic errand takes Runnin' Rob to Cleveland this week, to meet one James Bivins Tuesday night for the price of November's calories.

Cupboard Is Bare
"I hate to bother with humdrum matters like the larder," says Mr. Johnston, squeezing lemon into his four o'clock cuppa tea, "but there it is. The cupboard is bare and my Robin must go back to work. Quite a comedown, is it not, from being heavyweight champion of the world?"

"Heavyweight champion of the world?"
"Certainly. Last week we were heavyweight champion of the world," said the Bandit with dignity. "You heard about Louis the Indian giver, didn't you?"
"Well, Louis retired, and—"
"Certainly he retired," said Mr. Johnston. "I'm glad you noticed it. It never hurts to have an extra witness. He gives the title to my Robin Pastor, and then he takes it back and says he is not retiring after all. It shows a mean spirit, if you ask me."

"I did not understand that Louis gave the title to Mr. Pastor," said your correspondent.

Tragic Story
"He retired. That makes it automatic," said Mr. Johnston, reasoning with flawless logic, "that my Robin becomes the champion, being the next best heavyweight fighter in the world. It's ironical, what?"

"It's tragic. One day a king, and the next day a bum—I beg pardon. I mean the next day plain Robin Pastor again. It's disheartening. Why, Robin and I had already ordered our new stationery as the heavyweight champion of the world. We were having cards printed. If you ask me, as man to man," said Mr. Johnston, "Louis the Indian giver made a big mistake not staying retired."

"How is that?"
"He can't work the title himself. I ask you to note, being in the army," explained Mr. Johnston. "So why not lend it out to a nice clean type of family man like Robin Pastor-and-me. We would make good use of it. We would exercise it regularly. And then, when Louis the Indian giver wants it back, we would fight him for it."

"You would be willing—I mean Pastor would be willing—to fight Louis again?"
"Positively. That's the only way you can make real money nowadays," said Mr. Johnston frankly. "We would be delighted to meet Louis the Indian giver at any time. He does not intimidate us. Meanwhile," said the Bandit, swigging his Pekoe philosophically, "the Jimmy Bivinses of this world are always with us, and when the victuals run low, we settle for Bivins."

"Then you anticipate beating—that is to say, Pastor anticipates beating—this Bivins?"
"We will mow him down," said Mr. Johnston. "Or, to follow your own rather finicky line of distinction, Pastor will mow him down. Why split hairs? Bivins will be mowed down."

SEVEN COLLEGE GRID TEAMS UNSCORED-ON
NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—Among the unbeaten and untied football teams operating on the nation's college gridirons this war-time season, at least seven have yet to yield a score.

Tulsa (Okla.) university, defending champion of the Missouri Valley Conference, tops the list of at least fifty-eight teams shown in an Associated Press survey today to be still unbeaten and untied.

The Tulsa team has scored 215 points while holding four opponents scoreless, twenty-three of them against Oklahoma, of the Big Six, and forty of them against Washington, of the Missouri Valley.

Other teams which have not been scored on include Louisiana Tech, Baker University, of Baldwin, Kas.; Rollins College of Winter Park, Fla.; Idaho Southern Branch, Wartburg of Iowa, and East Stroudsburg, (Pa.)

Charles-Maxim

Bout To Feature Pittsburgh Show

Cincinnati Middleweight Being Compared With Late Harry Greb

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 19.—The closest approach to the late Harry Greb in fighting ability is the latest tag line being placed on Edward Charles, sensational Cincinnati middleweight, who meets Joey Maxim of Cleveland in the feature ten-round bout opening the winter indoor season at the Gardens, Pittsburgh, on Tuesday night, October 27.

The comparison between Charles and Greb has come about because of the classy colored boy's willingness to meet opponents of all size and ability as did the former Pittsburgh "Windmill" in his heyday in the early golden twenties. Greb didn't bar anyone, and Charles is following in the same footsteps as he has battered welterweights, middleweights, and lightweights into submission and is now invading the heavyweight ranks in taking on Maxim.

Charles Stopped Burley
Like Greb, Charles' greatest successes have been scored in Pittsburgh, despite the fact that Harry was a hometown boy and Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati, before he made his first appearance here last May, was said to have lifted through the boxing channels of a great prospect in Cincinnati known as Ezzard Charles.

When Ken Overlin failed to go through with a scheduled match here with Charles Burley in May, Charles was brought in as a substitute and immediately stole the show by whipping Burley in decisive fashion. Burley had won twenty-four straight bouts until then and his defeat stunned every one. A rematch was in order and Charles proceeded to whip Mr. Burley once again.

Kayode Beckwith
Having whipped a high-class welterweight Charles was looking for new worlds to conquer and jumped against a highly-touted light-heavyweight next time out in Booker Beckwith. All he did was hand Mr. Beckwith the first knockout of his career. Then came a middleweight opponent in the person of clever, game Jose Basora. Puerto Rican lad, Basora went out of the picture in the fifth round. After this, Mose Brown, hard-punching McKeesport, was selected to meet Ezzard and in turn was also handed his first knockout.

With no other fighters around willing to risk the power in Charles' mitts, a heavyweight was sought and one was found in Maxim. Cleveland's Billy Conn, who has won two straight bouts in Pittsburgh, Maxim will have some fifteen pounds advantage in weight and experience in his favor, but will have to do some fancy stepping to avoid Charles' lanky wallop.

Sewell Caught No-Hitters
Luke Sewell, the Browns' manager has been in three no-hit games in the American League. He handled Wes Ferrell's at Cleveland in 1931, Vern Kennedy's in '35 and Bill Dietrich's in '37 at Chicago.

College Grid Attendance Shows Decline

Transportation, War Cause Drop Of 25 Per Cent

Sharpest Slump Reported by Cornell—Decrease is General

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—College football attendance, as reflected in 127 games played so far this season by forty-four colleges of major caliber, is about twenty-five per cent lower than it was a year ago. A number of reasons are given for the changes in individual cases, such as adverse weather conditions at games that ordinarily would draw capacity crowds, the failure of one team or another to measure up to its usual standard as a drawing card or schedule changes that replaced big games with lesser ones, but only two apply to the whole list-transportation and the war.

These colleges, chosen to give a cross-section of the national football scene, have played before a total of 2,296,797 spectators so far this fall. A year ago the same number of home games for the same teams brought a total turnout of 3,028,955.

Decrease Is General
The decrease is a general one, with only a few exceptions and few cases where the drop has been greater than the general average. Boston college, Columbia, Purdue, Alabama, Louisiana State, Tennessee and Vanderbilt report greater attendances than in 1941, but in each case it is pointed out that this year's games have been unusually attractive. Many of these colleges also are conveniently located.

"The sharpest attendance slump was reported by Cornell, where inaccessibility combined with poor performances have combined to slash attendance from 49,070 for last year's first three games to 19,587 this year. Michigan, Nebraska, Missouri, Stanford, California and Ohio State are some of the other schools that attribute the decline largely to transportation difficulties.

Ohio State Situation
At Ohio State, where 387,715 fans turned out for five home games last year and a total of 486,488 saw the Bucks' eight contests, officials figure that it will take all ten games on this year's slate to equal the 1941 total. They point out also that last year scores of school buses from all over the state brought students to take advantage of reduced admissions on "high school days." This year such use of buses is forbidden.

On the Pacific Coast, California's big game with St. Mary's and Santa Clara both drew over 50,000 spectators last fall. This year's figures were 37,278 for the St. Mary's game and 33,926 for Santa Clara. A Utah university official summed up the whole situation in a few words. "People are not thinking football," he said.

Former Fullback Stars at Center

Washington Coach Compares Walt Harrison with Mel Hein

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 19 (Wide World)—They had to take big Walt Harrison out of a fullback job for his own protection, and Coach Ralph (Pete) Welch predicts the University of Washington star will prove himself one of the best centers in Pacific Northwest football history this fall.

That's taking in a lot of territory. Don't forget that Mel Hein, top center of professional football for a decade, went up from Washington State college. "In some ways I think Harrison even stands above Hein," the new Washington coach said. "I think he is a greater inspirational leader. He is a brilliant all-around performer. I have never seen a center I would swap for him."

Harrison is a jack-of-all-jobs on a football field. This is the Seattle 195-pounder's second straight year as a center. He played tackle in high school, end as a sophomore and then shifted to center.

"We couldn't leave him at fullback because his body wouldn't stand his own hard-hitting as a ball carrier," Welch explained. "I remember when Jim Phelan (then Washington head coach and Welch's boss) and I were looking over motion pictures of the Minnesota game of two years ago," Welch related. "I remarked to Jim about Walt's terrific blocking. 'Yes,' Jim replied, 'and you'll notice it's a different end every time. They aren't staying in there very long.'"

Talent at Camp Croft
There's plenty of football talent for the Camp Croft, S. C., team. Included are Stan Krivik, former Fordham backfield player; Henry Adams, center on Pittsburgh's 1937 Rose bowl team and Lou Abbruzzi, ex-Rhode Island State star who set a state scoring record in 1939.

Fourth Meeting Of Whirly, Alsab Looms Saturday

Wright Ace Assigned Top Weight Of 130 For Washington 'Cap

By DONALD SANDERS
LAUREL, Md., Oct. 19 (AP)—Whirly, the turf's leading money winner of all time today was assigned top weight of 130 pounds for Saturday's renewal of the $15,000-added Washington handicap, which may give him an opportunity to even the score with Alsab.

Racing Secretary John P. Turner, announcing weights for the mile and a quarter event, rated the long-lashed speedster from the Calumet farm stable of Warren Wright four pounds over the scale, and assigned Alsab 123 pounds, three above scale.

At that, Whirly will have a two-pound advantage over his last effort, the New York handicap, when he was beaten by Mrs. Al Sabath's three-year-old and by an unknown named Obash. In that effort he carried an impost nine pounds greater than that on Alsab, which seized the occasion to take the second of their three races to date.

Trainer Ben A. Jones shipped the Blenheim II son to Laurel Park, Saturday, but has made no statement regarding his plans for the Washington.

Alsab Due at Pimlico
Trainer Augustus (Sarge) Swenke and Alsab are due to arrive at Pimlico in Baltimore tomorrow morning. Swenke has said Alsab will start in the Pimlico Special, for which Whirly is also eligible. Only a four-day space separates the Washington and the Special.

Among other likely starters in the Washington, Louisiana farm's Riverland, which has come home first in his last eight starts but was disqualified twice, will carry third weight of 118, followed by W. L. Brann's veteran Chaledon, 117, and Valinda farm's Valinda Orphan, 114.

If Whirly does start in the Washington, Jockey Jack Westrope will probably be aboard, since his regular rider, George Woolf, is under contract to Brann and will be aboard either Chaledon or Pictor.

53 Horses Eligible
Of the fifty-three horses eligible for the twenty-ninth running of the Washington Cap, which was won last year by Pictor, eighteen are on the grounds or will be within a few days.

Of these possible starters, Miss Helen Hickman's Aonbar followed the Orphan in the assigned weights, with 112 pounds. Others included: Brann's Pictor and Tom Heir, Jr.'s Bossy, 111; Greenlee's Steady and Sway and Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, 110; Cedar farm's He Rolls and A. J. Sackett's Tola Rose, 109; Belair stud's Vagrancy, Greenlee's Corydon, Howard Wells's Equifox and George D. Widener's Rosetown, 108; A. C. Ernst's Altemer, 104; and Hal Price Headley's Equinox, 101.

Bob Steuber Sets Grid Scoring Pace
University of Missouri Halfback Boosts Total to 63 Points

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP)—Bob Steuber, senior halfback at the University of Missouri, is the leading scorer today among the nation's college football players.

Steuber, a former end, scored twenty-four points Saturday to boost his total for the season to sixty-three. In five games with the defending Big Six Conference champions, he has rambled to ten touchdowns and kicked three extra points.

He scampered seventy, forty-four and thirty-five yards for three of his touchdowns Saturday as the Tigers opened the defense of their conference title with a 46-2 triumph over Kansas State.

Second among the sectional leaders throughout the country is Gene Pekete, sophomore fullback of Ohio State's unbeaten Buckeyes, with fifty-two points.

The scoring leaders, showing player, school, position, number of games, touchdowns, points after touchdown, field goals and total points:

Grid Nicknames
MILWAUKEE, Wis.—For no reason, Marquette university's new-found sophomore halfback star, Johnny Strykowski, has picked up the nickname "Irish" and another novice left half, Wayne Johnston, who hails from the Panhandle country of Texas, is known as "Cowboy."

Civil Air Patrol To Sponsor Local Cadet Squadron

Boys and Girls of High School Ages May File Applications

A new Civilian Defense organization, to be known as Civil Air Patrol Cadets will be formed here as a part of a nation-wide movement to train more young people in aviation and duties allied with flying. T. E. Carlson, intelligence officer of Squadron No. 331-I, CAP of Cumberland.

To become a Civil Air Patrol Cadet the applicant must be a native-born, born of American or naturalized parents. Scholastic standing must be high and the applicant must be in one of the two last years of senior high school. The applicant must be physically sound, and each applicant must be sponsored by a member of the local CAP, with the women members sponsoring girl cadets and the men sponsoring the youth.

The strength of the cadet squadron will ultimately be the same as the CAP squadron, because each member can sponsor but one cadet. Cadets will not be assigned to flying duty, but will be trained in all phases of ground training similar to regular CAP members. After completing basic CAP ground training and upon graduation from high school the cadets will be eligible for full membership in the CAP.

Young men and young women who can fill the requirements and qualifications for the cadet squadron may obtain further information from any CAP member or from T. E. Carlson, intelligence officer and public relations officer for the Cumberland CAP squadron. Approximately sixty applications will be accepted.

LIONS CLUB BEGINS ATTENDANCE DRIVE FOR COMING YEAR
The Cumberland Lions Club has inaugurated a campaign to secure 100 per cent attendance at meetings and five teams have been designated.

The names of the teams are named for the Lions Club slogan. The campaign is divided into fall, spring and individual members contests. Better membership will result in better results from the club's eye conservation program and milk program for underprivileged children, club officials said.

Special awards will be made to individual members for perfect attendance during the thirty-two weeks of the contest. Awards will be made for the ten-week periods of each season for attendance. Five teams have also been named to participate in the campaign. Each team has been named after one of the words of the club's slogan. They are Liberty, Intelligence, Our, Nations, and Safety.

CIVIL SERVICE ANNOUNCES JOBS FOR MECHANICS

The United States Civil Service Commission office here yesterday issued an appeal for aircraft mechanics to apply for positions with the government. The entrance salary is $2,200 per year and the duties are to perform mechanical tasks of average difficulty in the maintenance, overhaul, repair, fabrication, and salvage of aircraft parts and accessories and equipment.

Applicants must have had at least four years of progressive training or experience, which may include apprenticeship in the maintenance and repair of aircraft. The age limit is 18 years or over.

The commission also announces relaxed requirements for inspectors in ship construction, whereby education can be substituted for part of the experience required formerly. There are four options listed; electrical, mechanical, steel hulls and wooden hulls. Salaries range from $2,000 per year upward.

Newer and higher rates of pay have also been announced for many trades and helper positions at navy establishments. Further information may be obtained at the local Civil Service Commission office, third floor, post office building.

POSTMASTER GIVES MORE INFORMATION ON OVERSEAS MAIL

Postmaster James C. Shriver has been requested by the Post Office department to advise the mailing public that parcels addressed to members of the armed forces overseas should not contain any food, not only because crumbs or other matter escaping from parcels attract vermin, but for the further reason that the armed forces are amply supplied with food.

Sometime ago the request was made that parcels be confined to the size of shoe boxes. "This was not to be construed that shoe boxes should be used but that a shoe-box size was the maximum size. Pasteboard boxes are not strong enough to withstand handlings in long distances and containers more substantial should be used."

The deadline for mailing of Christmas parcels, letters and cards to members of the armed forces outside the United States is November 1, to guarantee delivery by Christmas.

Mayor To Attend City Conference in Chicago

Mayor Thomas F. Conlon will attend the annual meeting of the American Municipal Association in Chicago, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. He was authorized to represent the city by action of the council yesterday.

David W. Sloan, local attorney and member of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, will deliver a radio address this evening at 8:15 o'clock over radio station WTBO in behalf of the post's membership drive.

Joseph A. Minke's Picture Appears In "Outdoor Life"

Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, is pictured in the November issue of "Outdoor Life" showing a tool which is used to clear brush in the woods.

Four photographs are used to illustrate a story showing how fire fighting is done in our woods. The story states the classes in fire fighting were held recently at Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, Md. The course was held primarily for those who enrolled in the "Triple F", the volunteer Forest Fire Fighters.

Lieut. Jones Helps To Down Jap Plane

Cumberlander Is Co-Pilot of Flying Boat that Bagged Enemy Craft

The story of how a Catalina flying boat of the United States Navy shot down a four-motored Japanese patrol plane told by Lieut. Francis C. Riley, of Winfield, South Dakota, reveals that Lieut. (j. g.) Charles M. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Jones, 676 Greene street, was co-pilot of the craft.

The Cumberland News last Wednesday carried a story of the local man's plane downing a Jap bomber, and the incident apparently is the same action.

The feat of the American crew is unusual, because the Catalina is a lumbering two-engine seaplane customarily used exclusively for patrol. It doesn't tackle enemy planes except in self-defense.

Lieut. Riley said they caught the four-motored Kawanishi plane "happening" and disposed of it. "We had this Jap spotted over the horizon," he related. "He was right on the water crossing my path. He looked like he was happening. I climbed above the lower layer of clouds and swung toward him. I closed in rapidly, ordering my boys to hold their fire until we were within 400 feet of him."

"Then I told my boys to let him have it. We hit his engines, then passed over and cut loose again. The Jap plane settled on the water and we saw the crew crawling out of the sinking ship."

Barclay on Bridge By SHEPARD BARCLAY "The Authority on Authorities."

LOSE ONE TO WIN TWO EVERY BRIDGE player knows what is meant by the word "finesse." But nobody has ever defined it thoroughly. Perhaps doing so is not easy. Years ago the great Whitehead defined one as "an effort to win a trick with a card which is lower than some other card of the suit held by an opponent." There are several plays easily recognizable as finesses which are not covered by that. One of these is the case in which you intentionally lose a finesse, for the purpose of creating an entry or entries to a holding.

Notice the difference in play of that contract at two tables of a duplicate. In each case it began with North leading the spade J to the Q, the club Q then being covered by the K and A, the diamond 10 by the J and A and the spade A then being laid down to clear the way for the K when West got into the dummy. Then came the difference.

To the fifth trick, the club 7 was led at each table, but one declarer called for the J from the dummy. He then scored the spade K, led the diamond 9, which South properly refused to cover, and then finessed the diamond 7—a marked finesse. The diamond K made his ninth trick. After he gave up a club with the 4 to the 9 and 10, South cashed the last diamond, led a heart to the A and the spade 10 took the last trick. West just making his contract.

The other West played the fifth trick differently. He saw that if North had the club 10, and the suit divided evenly, a finesse of the 9 would give him four tricks in the suit instead of two. If either of those desirable facts existed, he would get three tricks instead of two. So he finessed the 9, perfectly willing to lose if necessary. He did. South returned the heart 2 to the A, and North fired back another heart to the K. Now a club to the J made possible cashing of the 3. The spade K was taken, the diamond 9 sent through, the 7 also finessed and the K took the closing trick. Because of a single different play, that declarer made two extra tricks, one of them in clubs and one in hearts, as both spades and diamonds were stopped at the time he gave the enemy the lead.
